Mayor Criticized

Smith Quits Committee Over Business Tax Snub

'Property-Owner Do-Nothing Victim'

Blocked in his bid for immediate imposition of a business tax in Victoria, Ald. Donald Smith tendered his resignation yesterday as chairman and member of the trades licence committee in a sharply critical letter to Mayor Percy Scurrah.

Instead of action on the alderman's recommendations, council Monday night referred the red-hot question back to the newly-appointed committee on trades licences.

This dooms any change in the city taxation set-up this year, according to Ald. Smith.

Ald. Smith, who campaigned vigorously in last month's civic election and realized "conclusive endorsation" of the policy at the polls, warned the mayor not to "misconstrue the intent of my resignation."

"The struggle to keep the property-owner from being victimized will continue."

He charged the mayor: "You have gone on record as saying that as long as you are on council, there will not be a business tax.

"I wish to go on record as saying that as long as I am on council I will fight to collect this money from our larger firms, who can and should pay their fair share!"

In the letter Ald. Smith repeated his recommendations made at the conclusion of his report which, he said, the mayor refuses to consider.

He had hoped to see council take immediate action in implementing a graduated business tax with the additional revenue included in the 1957 budget; he urged that a committee be available to assist in redrafting the present trades licence by-law, and that the city manager be instructed to draft the new by-law.

'Expensive Ride'

"In referring this question back to committee, you are conducting a merry-go-round on which the people are being taken for a ride, quite an expensive ride at that," he wrote.

"I have no reason to believe that you will have a change of heart on a question over which you have been so adamant, merely by a committee once more bringing in recommendations which you have failed to discuss in the face of the electors' wishes."

He continued: "The list of committees which have made recommendations on this question is almost as long as a list of the things that our city could have done, but did not do.

"Failure to consider my report means that this money cannot be collected in time to give the home-owner protection this year . . . Until such time as the council, as a whole, accepts a business tax in principle, a committee can achieve nothing substantial to give the home-owner relief."

He said it must be obvious to the mayor, as it is to the public, that "we are only giving lip-service to the people's interests by time after time referring, referring, referring this matter.

"Have we not the necessary leadership qualities and fortitude to face up to it now, one way or the other?"

At no time did the mayor question the validity of his statement, Ald. Smith said. He chose, rather, to "blatantly suggest that you (the mayor) need still more information, which, sir, not only was at your disposal years ago, but which you had pre-judged in 1951.

"It is a sad commentary indeed, when public officials hold themselves in such a manner . . .

Home-Owner Victim

"Your actions, I submit, give little comfort to the home-owner, who year after year has been the victim of a 'do-nothing' policy."

If the mayor is to "take credit" for delaying a business tax this year, he must also accept full credit for any property tax increase which will follow, the alderman said.

"If there is one thing that has been consistent in our civic policy," he said, "it has been the never ceasing attacks on the home-owners' pocketbooks.

"We are charged, Mr. Mayor, with the responsibility of representing all sections of our community. To cater to the selfish whims of an extreme minority is disastrous."

The mayor told The Daily Colonist last night that the resignation was "typical of Alderman Smith . . . It's quite satisfactory to me."

He said Alderman Smith has again taken the attitude of "if you don't do as I say, I won't play the game."

The vote which sent the issue into the hands of the trades licences committee was 7-1, the mayor reminded, "with everyone voting against Alderman Smith."

Mayor Scurrah said he has information "which I can't disclose at this time," which points out that Ald. Austin Curtis "was right in the position he took in that we should first find out what the legislature intends to do in the revised Municipal Act."

Licence Problem Comes to Head

"It shouldn't happen to a dog," moaned Tico after things were brought to a head — Brownie's. What really caused those woebegone expressions was the news that dog licences are due Jan. 2, and the $1 discount allowed will stop on March 1. Fees, without discount, are $4 for males and spayed females, and $7 for females. All dogs over four months must be licensed.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Man, Woman Held in Seattle As Bank Holdup Suspects

J. REID HANNAN

Witnesses Pick Man From Police Lineup

By ERITH M. SMITH

Acting on information from Victoria city police, Seattle police are holding a man and woman in connection with Monday's holdup of the Royal Bank of Canada, Douglas and Cormorant.

The two have been identified by Seattle police as Leonard Wilson, 29, formerly of Duncan, and Valerie Jessiman, 18, also believed to be from Duncan.

The man was picked out of a lineup in Seattle yesterday by holdup witnesses as resembling closely the wanted man.

A phone call from the bank to Victoria police at one minute to noon Monday advised of the holdup.

At the bank within a minute, police were told that a tall, well-dressed young man pushed a note through the wicket to teller Alma Koppel of Stelly's Cross Road, demanding large bills under a threat to shoot.

Miss Koppel gave him a handful of bills, mostly 10s and 20s, amounting to about $1,400. The man then walked quietly but quickly out of the bank.

COLLIDED ON STREET

No one in the bank noticed anything at all, but the holdup man collided with Art Luney, 3280 Uplands, on the sidewalk just outside the bank.

Yesterday Miss Koppel and Mr. Luney flew with city officers to Seattle, where they saw Wilson in a lineup with four other men, and picked him out as resembling the holdup man.

The suspect and his companion apparently flew to Seattle Monday afternoon.

Neville Shanks, Sidney correspondent for The Daily Colonist, learned yesterday that a man and woman giving the names of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left Patricia Bay airport on the 2 p.m. flight Monday for Seattle.

The couple arrived at the airport in a taxi from Victoria, saying that the airport bus which was supposed to pick them up in Victoria had not appeared at the appointed place and time.

Two facts about the couple attracted the attention of TCA agent J. Reid Hannan.

Ottawa Promise:

Something For All!

OTTAWA (BUP) — The government put a something-for-everybody program before the new 1957 session by parliament yesterday, apparently in preparation for a June federal general election.

Massey read the Speech from the Throne, written for him by the cabinet, emphasizing Canada's efforts to promote international harmony, praising the nation's bouncing economic boom at home.

The session is expected to be prorogued before Easter, whether or not the legislative work is completed, and parliament dissolved for a general election, freely forecast for June 17.

The something-for-everybody legislative program broke down this way:

For all Canadians — The Canada Council will be set up and endowed with $50,000,000 to Canada scholarship and culture; the council will be granted another $50,000,000 to help universities with major construction projects; annual sustaining grants for universities with major construction projects; annual sustaining grants for universities will be doubled to $16,000,000; federal grants will be made on an increased scale to all municipalities in view of taxes on Crown property; higher grants will be made to provincial governments for technical and vocational schools; anti-narcotic laws will be tightened.

For farmers—On the Prairies, the Canadian Wheat Board will be renewed, continuing the board as the sole marketing agency for Western wheat, oats and barley, on the Prairies and elsewhere, the Senate will be asked to study what should be done to make better use of farm land and improve agricultural production and farmers' incomes.

For seamen an fishermen—Benefits to disabled seamen and dependants of deceased seamen will be raised; for the West Coast, the North Pacific Fur Seal Convention will be implemented and pink salmon will be included in the existing Sockeye Salmon Convention.

Irish Steal Explosives

DUBLIN (Reuters) — The Irish Republican Army is suspected of stealing the 570 pounds of gelignite that vanished from a county council store in north Tipperary Monday night. Gelignite is a powerful explosive, very useful for bombs.

Some 1,200 electric detonators, 1,300 ordinary detonators and 100 coils of fuse also are missing.

CBC 'Feels Shame' Over Own Media

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto professor says dullness and ineffectuality result from the CBC trying to make radio and television mere vehicles for book culture.

Prof. Herbert M. McLuhan, professor of English at St. Michael's College, told a board of trade club meeting Monday, "the CBC is ashamed of radio and TV. It thinks these are vulgar forms."

Prof. McLuhan is also chairman of the Ford Foundation seminar on culture and communications. He also does communications research at the University of Toronto.

City Employees

Wage Demands Top $200,000

Faced with wage-increase demands that probably exceed $200,000 in total, city council will meet specially Thursday to consider wage policy.

Mayor Percy Scurrah called the meeting yesterday.

At the same time, the mayor will ask council to take a firm stand against the use of trading stamps in Victoria. (See story on page 9).

City firemen and policemen are seeking 15-per-cent wage increases, which, according to unofficial computations, would add $58,000 and $60,000 respectively this year to the costs of the two departments, if granted in full.

In addition, the inside and outside staffs of city hall have asked for reopening of their working agreements. City Manager C. C. Wyatt said yesterday the extent of their requests would be made known first at Thursday's council meeting.

But even on the basis of the formula devised by Mr. Wyatt last year and accepted by the inside and outside staffs on a two-year basis, the increase could hardly be less than five per cent, or about $100,000.

Mayor Scurrah said yesterday that Mr. Wyatt would require some direction from council before entering into negotiations with the staff unions.

Student Startles Court

TORONTO (BUP)—The traffic court was taken aback yesterday when a law student contended as his defence that Toronto's parking by-law was invalid.

Justice of the Peace Douglas White was so surprised that he adjourned the overtime parking case until Jan. 22 to give crown officials time to investigate.

The student said the city parking by-law was invalid because the city was using the streets to conduct a business. The city, he said, had no authority to collect fees off the streets or to pass a by-law forcing motorists to use parking meters.

The student said he would take the case to the Ontario Court of Appeal if necessary.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

IN difficult times, numerous people tend to look upon reporters and photographers as agents of the Devil. Men of the press, wearily trying to gather information about a fire, a holdup, an accident or a murder, often find their way blocked by well-meaning citizens who seem to think that they are there for spite or hatred.

The newspapermen don't cry about this kind of obstruction. They merely note it as a curious fact.

"I remember one time I was at a veterans' picnic," says Colonist cameraman Jim Ryan, "and a little girl put her hand through the grille of a car to grab something, then found she couldn't get her hand out.

"She looked around, and the expression on her face was something . . . I'm getting ready to take a picture, but there's a bunch of people around saying 'Don't take the picture, don't take the picture.'

"As soon as she let go of what she was holding, and pulled her hand clear, she was smiling. I knew she was going to pull it out. It took six or seven seconds. So I missed an expression I probably would never get again. It can be that quick—whether you get a prize-winning picture or not."

Jim is a father, and has an immense liking for all children. And yet the people around, thrown into a panic by an unfamiliar situation, condemned him as a morbid intruder who was trying to make capital of distress.

Like other photographers, Jim is used to having people rush up to him at the scene of an accident and say: "If you take that picture, it'll be the last you'll ever take. I'll have your job."

Target Needed

The explanation seems to be that some people in a state of emotional shock need a target for their feelings. The newspaperman, who is there only to record facts, by which he earns his bread, makes a conspicuous mark.

He tries to fade into the background. But he can't make himself invisible.

More than once, the manager of a business house has forbidden reporters to see a girl cashier who has been robbed, declaring that she is too upset to talk. But the newspapermen, who have attended more robberies than the businessman ever will, knows that she will be glad to talk—that talking will actually do her good, because it releases pent-up fear.

* * *

When a newspaper chronicles car accidents, it gives an example to other drivers, so that they can be more cautious. When a photographer makes a picture of the pain-wracked expression on the face of a mother whose child is lost in the woods, he helps to recruit searchers.

But it would be foolish to pretend that every story or picture in a newspaper has a moral purpose. The chief object of the newspaper is to convey facts.

Many unpleasant things happen in the world. Ignoring unpleasant things will not make them vanish. It is the job of newspapers to record events for the information of other people who share the world.

The agents of newspapers can usually be relied upon to do this job without hurting more feelings than they need, without unduly invading privacy, and without spoiling too many people's appetites for breakfast.

* * *

And yet drivers who have crashed a car into a pole, threaten to have them fired; some bank managers who have been robbed forbid them to speak with eye-witnesses; and excited folk try to bar them from recording human emotion, as if human emotion were something indecent.

Halfway Home

Forest Students Land

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Forestry students of Sopron University stepped eagerly ashore Tuesday on Canadian soil, past the half-way mark in an audacious mass movement of young learning from the old world.

They came ashore from the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, wide-eyed and curious about their new home—the country whose width from sea to sea almost equals the 4,000 miles they have travelled from [illegible]

"We are happy to get to Canada because here is so many forests," said 21-year-old Andrew Jakoy, a red-haired forestry student who escaped with the school into Austria during the Hungarian revolt last November.

"Canada is always a free country, too," he added.

Those in the university contingent bound for temporary quarters provided by the Powell River Company in Powell River, B.C., are 288 persons—201 men, 58 women and 29 children. Professor Kalman Roller, 43-year-old dean of Sopron's forestry faculty, is in charge.

They made the most of their voyage, meeting and talking to English-speaking passengers to learn the language of their adopted home.

[illegible] Some 10,000 Hungarian rebels are battling Russian soldiers and keeping the spirit of freedom alive in the swamps and forests of southwest Hungary, newly-arrived refugees reported Tuesday.

They said the number of freedom fighters has been swelled by patriots fleeing the harsh edicts of Premier Janos Kadar in Budapest.

Russian armored forces can make little headway against the rebels in the swamps near the Yugoslav border, in the rugged Metra Mountains and the vast Bakony Forest, the refugees said.

They reported sharp skirmishes since the weekend around the city of Pecs.

The partisans were reported getting food from sympathetic peasants and seizing weapons in raids on Red Army supply lines.

According to the refugees, the partisans can hold out indefinitely in their inaccessible strongholds.

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungary's Red government intensified efforts Tuesday to stop the flight of refugees and threatened a drastic purge of its opponents who are standing their ground.

The Communist party newspaper Nepszabadsag confirmed police now are checking trains for refugees at various stations and dragging them off.

A police detachment removed 180 persons, referred to by the Communists as "defector candidates," from a single train. Nepszabadsag said many of them were "aging women, sick people and parents with small children."

Those suspected of nothing more than a desire to leave Hungary were brought back to Budapest and sent home, the party organ said. But a man accused of carrying "confidential maps and documents" was arrested. So was another accused of carrying jewelry.

'Didn't Ask Anyone To Vote Yes'—Golby

Greater Victoria school board's paid advertising for the $5,600,000 school building referendum was approved common practice used throughout the province and endorsed by the department of education, senior school inspector John Gough said last night.

In answer to a letter to city council charging public funds were used to influence voters in the December elections, school board chairman W. H. Golby said board's advertising asked people only to vote. It did not ask them to vote "yes."

The letter received by city council at a meeting Monday night was signed by former alderman Robert Macmillan, writing as a "citizen and taxpayer."

"The school board is permitted to spend a very small percentage on advertising the referendum under the Public Schools Act," Mr. Golby said.

"CAN AND SHOULD"

"In 1954 we asked the department of education for clarification of the law and were told we can and should inform the public through paid advertising of the referendum."

He said the board may not advertise the same way when the referendum is voted again in the week of March 4 to 9.

"We are not quite sure yet, but we may not have to advertise. We think there has been plenty of publicity already," Mr. Golby said.

Mr. Gough said the board was quite within its rights and had kept well within the allowed amount of money for advertising.

A copy of the letter was to be forwarded to the board by city council, asking if the allegations were correct.

"THAT SETTLES IT"

Mayor Percy Scurrah's only comment on hearing Mr. Golby's remarks was, "If they have permission, then that settles it."

Oak Bay Reeve Fred Norris said the use of the money was quite all right as long as it was used to present information and not propaganda.

"I don't thing the board overstepped and tried to influence the public to vote "yes," the reeve said. "One of the main complaints I heard from the voters was that they didn't know enough about the school referendum."

Reeve A. C. Wurtle of Esquimalt said the board was in the difficult position of presenting unbiased advertising for something it advocated.

"They may have overstepped a bit, but it is unfair to criticize them on that point," he said.

Garden Notes

Bit of Frost Can Be Useful

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One of the outdoor garden jobs which should be done while the ground is hard, with a good crust of frost on it, is the wheeling of manure from the manure pile to the parts of the garden where it is to be distributed. Pushing a wheelbarrow over soft ground is a miserable chore, but is a cinch when there is a bit of frost to harden the surface.

It was while engaged in this strenuous task I got to thinking about some of the rules and fallacies regarding the handling of manure and fertilizers. Here are a few important "don'ts" to keep in mind.

DECOMPOSITION

Don't use fresh animal manure immediately before sowing or planting. It has to be decomposed before it does any good, and can do a lot of harm to tender root tips while fresh and "hot." Moreover, the soil is actually less fertile than before for a little while after applying fresh manure. It has to be assimilated before the soil fertility rises. Potatoes are the chief exception to this rule—they can get along with fresh manure, but they perform even better with well-rotted stuff.

Don't allow any kind of manure or fertilizer to stand exposed to the weather. It can't help but lose a lot of valuable soil nutrients by leaching out in the rain and by oxidation.

If you can't fork it into the soil right away—and the soil is the best storage place for manure—cover the pile with an old tarp or a sheet of old galvanized iron to protect it from the wet.

DON'T MIX

Don't mix animal manure with lime before digging in, or you will lose a lot of nitrogen in the form of ammonia. Liming and manuring of any plot of ground should always be at least a month apart. The only exception to this rule is when the soil is suffering from a bad infestation of underground pests such as wireworms, cutworms, leatherjackets and the like. In this case, it is sometimes a good idea to scuffle in some lime immediately after digging in the manure. The lime combines with the manure and releases ammonia gas, which drives out or kills the soil pests while filtering through the soil.

You lose some plant nutrients, true, but this is more than compensated by the clean-up job done on the soil pests.

DON'T BURY

Don't bury manure, compost or fertilizers too deeply, for the feeding roots of most plants are active in the top few inches of soil, where the soil bacteria colonies are dense. Don't think that you can tempt the roots to plunge away down deep by putting the manure down there to attract them, like hanging a carrot in front of a donkey's nose. It doesn't work out that way.

Contrary to popular opinion, plant roots are NOT attracted in the direction of deposits of manure—they merely stop and exploit what manure they encounter by chance. The place for manure is in the top six inches of soil.

DON'T LEAVE

Don't leave the manure in lumps or concentrations in the soil, but mix it as intimately with the dirt as you can. The reason for this goes back to last paragraph — if plant roots encounter a rich vein of manure, they will stop right there and exploit it. If manure is mixed thoroughly, roots will forage through the soil more, and with an extended root system, plants will suffer less in times of drought.

NANAIMO — Nanaimo's vital statistics for 1956 present a dismal picture. They show more deaths than the previous year, fewer births, and fewer marriages. Some 615 births were registered, 47 less than the previous year; there were 259 deaths against 210; and 264 marriages, 53 less than in 1955.

'No Agreement Among Firms On Gas Deal'

CALGARY (CP) — The Albertan says today three established natural gas companies in the American Midwest have not come to terms with Tennessee Gas Co., for sharing in Tennessee's contract for "cheap" Alberta gas. But negotiations apparently will continue.

The newspaper quotes James F. Oates, Jr., chairman of Peoples Gas, Light and Coke of Chicago, as saying in a long-distance telephone interview Tuesday the companies associated in the Midwest group—American Natural Gas of Detroit, Northern Natural Gas of Minneapolis and Peoples—talked with Tennessee Gas in Chicago Dec. 11 and Washington Jan. 3 to discuss merger of their interests.

The three companies, the newspaper adds, "are currently objecting before the federal power commission to Tennessee's proposed invasion of their territory."

It quotes Mr. Oates as saying the parties involved were still far apart following their Washington meeting this month.

Mr. Oates added that, "We are not going to give up hope that an amicable solution will be reached," the newspaper said.

MANNING DISAGREES

EDMONTON (CP)—Premier E. C. Manning says he does not agree that Trans Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. can charge a higher price for natural gas exported to the United States.

He said Trans Canada's selling price could not be higher because the U.S. Federal Power Commission would not permit importation of Canadian gas at prices equal to or higher than those for domestic supplies.

"The present situation with respect to Trans Canada is largely governed by the present national gas policy which has prohibited other export projects and placed Alberta producers in a position where there is only one purchaser with whom they can deal," Mr. Manning said.

Mr. Manning at one point said this policy is "monopolistic" and has been opposed "from the very beginning" by the Alberta government.

* * *

NOT ASKED

EDMONTON (CP) — N. E. Tanner, president of the Trans Canada Pipe Lines, said that Alberta natural gas producers are not being asked to cut their selling prices so that Western gas can be sold in the United States.

Mr. Tanner said Trans Canada will pay gas-producing companies 10 cents per 1,000 cubic feet and there has been no change in this since negotiations began with producers a year ago.

Trans Canada would charge American buyers approximately 25.8 cents per 1,000 cubic feet at Emerson, Man.

HOUSTON, Tex. (CP)—The Tennessee Gas Transmission Company said Tuesday it is not taking joint action with another U.S. gas-line group to obtain permission from the U.S. Federal Power Commission to import Canadian natural gas.

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said Tuesday there was "no foundation" to the report that Tennessee was taking joint action with another gas-line group to import Canadian natural gas.

Oil to Flow in Israel Pipeline

Mechanical excavator is used in ditch-digging for new Israeli pipeline across Negev desert. When completed, it will carry oil from the Aquaban port of Pilat to Beersheba, southern rail centre, from which point it can be transported to the big Haifa refinery. Engineers say it will be finished within six months and be able to carry enough oil to relieve the Suez Canal situation.—(CPC.)

75,000 CPR Workers Back CLC Strike Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — A joint committee representing the 75,000 organized employees of the CPR Tuesday sent a letter to Prime Minister St. Laurent supporting the proposals for settlement of the CPR firemen's strike announced Monday by the Canadian Labor Congress.

The committee, representing both non-operating and running trades, said it "unreservedly endorses the proposals presented to the prime minister for disposition of the dispute by the CLC."

Its resolution, transmitted to Mr. St. Laurent late Tuesday, said it is difficult to see how the CPR could "fail to recognize and appreciate the impartial and objective approach" to the problem which would be given by an inquiring commission proposed by the congress.

Meanwhile, CCF Commons members suggested the appointment of a government controller to direct immediate resumption of work on the CPR unless the tieup on the system is settled promptly.

They propose a four-point program:

1. That the government ask the CPR and its employees to begin rail operations immediately, on the existing basis but without prejudice to the rights of either side, while the strike issue of diesel fireman is investigated.

2. That if the CPR fails to agree to reopen operations, a controller be appointed to take over temporary management.

3. That an investigating commission be appointed to examine all factors concerning diesel firemen, whose numbers the CPR proposes to reduce.

4. That the findings of the inquiry be submitted to a federally appointed board that would mediate all issues still remaining. There would be no compulsory arbitration, however.

Williston Declares:

Forest Industry Ills Don't Warrant Parley

Economic troubles plaguing the forest industry in British Columbia have not yet become serious enough to warrant a top-level conference between government, management, and labor, aimed at finding a solution, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said yesterday.

The minister said, however, that the problems facing the industry must be viewed "realistically" although he declined to say how the government could help.

Mr. Williston agreed with the suggestion put forward last week by Canadian Forest Products' vice-president L. L. G. Bentley that management, labor and government must all co-operate in the difficult period. He said the time has come "to review the situation for the coming year."

Mr. Bentley recommended the government take action to reduce stumpage rates paid for government timber but the minister indicated he did not agree with this.

"The stumpage rates are closely connected to economic conditions in the industry," Mr. Williston said. "The formula is calculated largely on the costs of operation and market conditions.

"I don't think they are too heavy a part of the overall cost of operation," he added. "Besides we have no way of controlling competitive bidding on stumpage and stumpage is the only return the people get from their natural resource."

The minister did say, however, that stumpage was always subject to review in the light of conditions.

Two Suspects Held

First, they paid the $5.50 cab fare without protest, whereas most people who miss the airport bus and have to pay that taxi rate complain vigorously.

Second, the man appeared very nervous, frequently wiping his forehead and obviously anxious to get aboard the flight and away.

USED $20 BILL

The woman stayed in the background while the man paid for their plane tickets, using a $20 bill.

Because of his suspicions, Mr. Hannan telephoned his head office in Victoria to learn where "Mr. and Mrs. Wilson" had made their reservations for the flight.

He was told they had telephoned for the plane space at about 10 a.m. Monday, using the Hotel Douglas as a contact point.

A subsequent check with the hotel disclosed that no "Mr. and Mrs. Wilson" were registered there.

Mr. Hannan and the other agents had been given a description of the holdup suspect by police, and the man's appearance, added to the other factors, made him get in touch with Sidney RCMP Constable G. W. K. King.

Const. King had been watching flights out of the airport but had to return to Sidney for a court case just before the 2 p.m. flight left for Seattle.

In a telephone conversation last night with a Colonist reporter, Seattle detective captain Charles A. Rouse said his department was called by Victoria police about 5 p.m. Monday, and told of the suspects believed flying to the U.S. city.

Said Capt. Rouse:

"Our first officers who got in touch with the suspect felt he was not the right man, he was so very cool and calm."

However, Seattle detectives accompanied the two suspects to various night spots and eating places, during which time the two made several telephone calls to Canada.

Eventually, said Capt. Rouse, the male suspect began to lose his cool, calm manner, and began to say things that made the officers with them believe they had the right suspects.

Finally, at about 5 a.m. Tuesday, the detectives were sufficiently convinced to make the couple wait in the Seattle detective bureau. The two were not locked up, Capt. Rouse said, but allowed to sit in a special waiting room.

Two Victoria detectives—Gus Munro and Alex Briggs—arrived in the Washington city Tuesday morning, accompanied by the two witnesses who later picked the male suspect from the lineup.

Meanwhile, Acting Detective Inspector Louis Callan of Victoria had obtained warrants for both suspects.

Seattle police said the male suspect had about $1,000 in his possession but claimed it was money he had earned as welder. He denied at first any knowledge of or connection with the Royal Bank holdup.

"I'M CONVINCED"

However, Victoria Police Chief John Blackstock said yesterday:

"I'm convinced that this man should be charged."

The leads which led Victoria police to the Seattle tip-off came, they said, from "routine investigation and information received."

Behind those five words lie long hours of hard work by almost every member of the city force.

Its Duty Is To Act

On the eve of the opening of Parliament yesterday Prime Minister St. Laurent told Ottawa reporters that his government planned no intervention in the week-old CPR firemen's strike. It is less than a fortnight ago that he was quoted as stating that "there must not, in fact there cannot, be a strike." The strike is on but apparently he now shies away from responsibility.

The reason is not far to seek. The Liberal administration is playing politics, and with a matter that is causing economic havoc among many people. Because of the expected election this summer it obviously fears the labor vote. If it persists in this attitude it will invite a graver political consequence, the adverse opinion of the country at large, which has been shocked by the spectacle of a handful of workers having the power to hold the nation to economic ransom. That is a far more serious political threat than the labor vote.

Politics has no place in the issue. The country is being increasingly set back every day that passes. More and more the strike's effects are spreading, throwing thousands of innocent people out of work, creating grave hardship and immense loss of business. The effects have gone far beyond the merits of any grievance even if it were justified, and in the present instance the firemen's case is indefensible.

The impasse between the CPR and the striking union has hardened without apparent promise of early settlement. Parliament is now sitting and it is the government's duty to ask the House to take measures to bring the dispute to an end. If it fails to do this and the strike continues its ruinous course it will be as indifferent to the well-being of the nation as the strikers themselves. Nor will the nation forget such an abdication of responsibility in the midst of mounting economic paralysis.

Something Started

REEVE Arthur Ash of Saanich in announcing his decision not to run again has expressed a hope that at the end of this year he will be able to think he "has made some small contribution to our civic affairs." He has done so already—and no small contribution either.

Although there is as yet nothing definite to show for his efforts in the direction of amalgamation, Mr. Ash has succeeded in jolting not just Saanich but other municipalities of Greater Victoria out of the complacent attitude that the many problems of the region will take care of themselves under the existing top-heavy administrative arrangement.

That is quite an achievement in itself, and even if he relinquishes office at the end of his second year without something positive being accomplished, Reeve Ash may take credit for having exploded a string of firecrackers under municipal chairs. As far as his own municipality is concerned he has indicated in the plainest terms his conviction that tax rate can go nowhere but up unless a start is made on the elimination of services overlapping those of neighbors. The trend of affairs in Saanich, of steadily increasing taxes every year and of mounting administrative costs, plus the certainty of heavy capital expenditures in the future to make up for past neglect of essentials, appear to bear out everything Mr. Ash has predicted.

Saanich is a good example of the paradox of outward prosperity causing inward financial discomfort. Its year-by-year building records show the rapidity of recent residential development, but the trouble is that this too-quick expansion has out-run the existing services; and through mounting taxes the older parts of the district are being punished for no fault of their own. Higher and higher tax rates have been imposed but they have not begun to catch up with arrears of public works that cannot be put off much longer.

Mr. Ash has never made any secret of his belief that the remedy lies partially in cutting down overhead by combining forces—with the city as a start and with the other municipalities eventually. He campaigned openly for gradual amalgamation, and the electors of Saanich put him into office. The sense of frustration which appears to have influenced the reeve's decision not to run again is understandable in the light of what has transpired during his first year, but it is to be hoped that what he has started will not be allowed to stop when he quits the chair.

Much Better Prospect

BY sticking to it with courage and determination Mayor Scurrah and the city council have turned the Point Ellice Bridge undertaking into a much brighter prospect than it had appeared before. If, as it is now believed by the City, some $200,000 towards the cost of reconstruction will be forthcoming from other sources, the burden on Victoria will be reduced considerably. The City already had the promise of the provincial government to match any federal help that might be secured. By going after that opportunity and pressing home its arguments on federal authorities, Victoria now has found some encouraging support at Ottawa.

When it is recalled that the reconstruction of Point Ellice Bridge is primarily to remove a public hazard it is only just and fair that Victoria should not be left to stand alone in the matter. As the Colonist has pointed out on many occasions, there are industrial, federal and provincial responsibilities directly or indirectly involved. The Province offered its help fairly and without argument. Ottawa proved more obdurate, but recognition has been won now as to two definite forms of federal assistance: one, through the Canadian National Railways, which must underpass the new bridge; and the other, by the federal transport department.

At no one point is this suggested assistance large, but together with the provincial undertaking amounts to about one-third of the cost of the new structure. If this indicated assistance is forthcoming, the hazard of the outworn bridge can be eliminated on a co-operative and understanding basis. As the City has arranged to finance its outlay through revenue assets and reserves there will be no new debt in connection with the structure.

From every standpoint this should make a satisfactory settlement of the long-standing problem. Navigation will have its high-level bridge clearance. Garrison services will have the heavy-duty road they need to cross the Gorge at this point. The CNR will have its underpass. The Province will retain the use of a necessary arterial highway connection; while the Dominion will have honored its public obligation with regard to navigable tidewaters.

Mayor Scurrah has said that the work may begin in April, and that the reconstructed bridge can be completed during the summer. We know of no better start for the new year.

Three Parties—All Communist

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

WLADYSLAW Gomulka, Poland's Communist leader, faces his biggest test since he led his country's fight against Russian domination last October.

On Jan. 20, about 18,000,000 Poles will vote in an election to fill the 459 seats in the Sejm, the single-chamber parliament.

To a great extent, the election will be a vote for or against Gomulka personally.

There is no doubt that Gomulka's Communists—the United Polish Workers' Party—will win.

And though Gomulka is a dedicated, hard-core Communist, there is little doubt that Soviet Russian leaders would be glad if he took a beating. They have accepted his victory for independent communism. But they have done so only because they had to.

A card-carrying Communist since his youth, Gomulka was purged in 1948 as a "Titoist." He was brought back as first secretary of the Communist Party after the Poznan riots which opened the East European satellite revolt against Russian dictatorship.

Since that dramatic week late last October when Gomulka and his fellow leaders defied Russia and established an independent Communist regime, Gomulka has been walking a political tight rope.

First, he has had to keep under control the bitter enmity of Poles to Russia and to the continued presence of Russian troops on Polish soil.

An outbreak which could decide the Soviet government to intervene as it did in Hungary could come at any time if Gomulka lost control.

Secondly, Gomulka has had to take the blame for Poland's desperate economic situation.

Poland may have won freedom from Russian domination, but it still is faced by bad housing conditions, food shortages and high prices.

Thirdly, Polish workers, students and intellectuals are demanding greater political freedom. They want a really representative parliament. Gomulka is in no position to concede that even if he wanted to.

As the election machinery has been worked out, there will be about 730 candidates for the 459 seats in the Sejm.

The candidates are being selected by commissions representing various political, trade and other groups.

The candidates will be put on a single ticket under the names of the United Workers', United Peasants and Democratic parties. All are really Communist. Voters will have some choice in electing candidates, for there will be more candidates than seats. Gomulka is permitting independents to run also provided they are approved by the nominating commissions.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

WHEN one ventures to think out loud daily there is always the risk of being unwise.

One of my readers says that, as popular parlance has it, I have stuck my neck out.

Actually he puts it more gracefully, to wit: "Why do you risk being laid aside, perhaps covered with flowers." He means, as a matter of fact, that I might be clawed to death if I am not more careful—by red-painted fingernails.

His concern, apropos the enigmatic smile on the Mona Lisa, is over my remark that one never knows what any lady is thinking of.

Not very discreet of me, when I come to look at it in print. I feel somewhat like Alice in Wonderland: "Really, now you ask me, I don't think . . ."

"Then you shouldn't talk," said the Hatter.

* * *

But of course the Mona Lisa is, like all her sex, merely exercising an acknowledged prerogative. And why should she betray her thoughts, anyway. She might have sizzled Leonardo had she done so and then her portrait would never have been finished.

Thought is a man's last refuge too, however. In fact along with the ballot-box thought is the ultimate human secret; in our way of life at least. Unfortunately in some lands a person can be robbed of thought as well as of a free ballot; and how dreadful a notion that is.

A philosopher once said: "The secret thoughts of a man run over all things, holy, profane, clean, obscene, grave and light, without shame or blame."

How true. And how remarkable sometimes that our faces don't betray our minds. Another social writer believed that it's as easy to expel an obnoxious thought as to shake a stone from a shoe, but he was an optimist.

* * *

It's not that easy; not by a long chalk. Which makes our capacity for hiding our thoughts a marvellous thing.

Very handy, too, else we'd live in a perpetual uproar. There never was a more illuminating play than the one titled "Nothing But the Truth".

Now ladies are not alone, I'll have to admit and bless their hearts, in the power of dissembling. I am not backtracking on the Mona Lisa when I say that. Some men I have known were pastmasters at camouflaging their thoughts, the while free-flowing with verbal opposites. If they did not match the natural ingenuity of milady it wasn't for the want of trying.

* * *

Paradoxically, though, the faces of most people give them away; it takes a born facility for ambiguity or long training at the business not to reveal by one's expression what one is thinking.

And mind you this can be awkward. Many a time I've wished my face would mask my real feelings when I was pretending about something or other.

One thing you can't pretend about, however, is cold print. There it is before your eyes with no smile to becloud the unwise remark. Which is why I should pay attention in future to my reader's concern, I suppose.

I shouldn't like, you know, to wander as he warns into such deep water that I'd go down three times and only come up twice.

On the other hand, over the weekend a lady challenged my identity and I had to confess I was the owner of the face perched near the top of this column, but, praise be, she didn't have sharp fingernails.

But then perhaps she hadn't noted the indiscreet arrow I aimed at the fair sex.

Letter from London

Century of Policing in Britain

By RICHARD L. THOMAS, Daily Colonist Correspondent

THE English policeman has long been regarded as wonderful—at least by law-abiding citizens. In recent times he has, perhaps, been a little less wonderful as the law has become more involved and more intimate. The erstwhile law-abiding citizen is apt to return to precocious youth when confronted with a policeman concerned about a car with no lights or for parking in the wrong place, and erupt with a "Pity you haven't something better to do"—a remark rarely uttered, so I am told, by the competent criminal.

In his quieter moments, with the car in the garage, the Englishman still believes that the copper, bobbie—call him what you will—is a pretty good sort; and it is just as well because in 1957 many of England's police forces will be celebrating their centenary—and few these days would care to support the opposition which their creation aroused, primarily in the belief that it would lead to a police state. The history of some European counterparts underlines the justice of the charge and one assumes that British common sense, independence and tolerance were largely responsible for the compromise represented by most British police forces all over the world.

I have been delving recently into the documents of the Kent County Constabulary from the start of the force in 1857 to the present day, and the story comprises a slice of English social history. It is difficult to reconcile the modern streamlined force with its radio patrol cars, elaborate records, scientific laboratories and all the impedimenta of modern criminal detection, and protection, with the rugged, ruthless era in which it was born. Yet the whole history can be covered in the personal contact of one man.

* * *

Kent's first chief constable, Mr. John Henry Ruxton, was appointed on Jan. 14, 1857. Living at Herne Bay in retirement is ex-superintendent George Ford. He was sworn in as a constable by Mr. Ruxton and knew him quite well through family associations.

So we can link the whole hundred years in the handshake of one man. When I said good afternoon to Mr. Ford, still remarkably active for his 82 years, I shook hands with a man who had in turn shaken hands with Kent's first chief constable—and what a cavalcade of history those two handshakes represented. The first constables of the Kent force controlled the crowds which attended public executions, and for a time they did not even have horses for transport. It was a world without electricity, telephones or even bicycles.

Two handshakes covered a staggering period of development. Candles and gaslight gave way to electricity; the triumphant railways penetrating the hills and dales of Kent have, in many instances, vanished again as redundant; the leafy country lanes along which farm carts and traps and an occasional stage coach meandered have become paved highways crammed (until Nasser stopped it) with fuming vehicles; the police bicycle has been replaced by radio patrol car and the sky is busy with aircraft. Indeed it was a Kentish policeman who saw what Lord Northcliffe described as the end of Britain as an island—the landing of Bleriot after his cross-Channel flight 48 years ago.

* * *

Only a decade ago the fields of Kent were still littered with the remnants of Hitler's vanished dreams; and it was Kentish policemen who prepared to face invasion twice in 25 years, and who for six weary years faced the tragedy and destruction which came to "bomb alley"—for Kent was the saviour of London in the grimmest years.

Indeed the history of Europe is the backdrop to the history of the Kentish policeman, and Superintendent Ford is himself a reminder of sterner times. There was no police college for him, no training except the training of experience, and there was no such things as a detective branch when he started. To wander through headquarters near Maidstone, with its radio transmitter, its photographic department, its card index of fingerprints and criminals, its cars and sense of unhurried speed, is to enter a changed world.

* * *

Changed too, the policeman. No longer the lonely footslogger on his regular beat but an important contact in an elaborate scientific machine attuned not only to the detection of crime but even more to its prevention. The police force has grown from a roughly organized group of individuals to a highly specialized team—and perhaps, in that fact it has lost something valuable, for gone is the day when the "copper" got his man. Today that is limited to the comparatively rare "red-handed" capture. More often than not today's criminal is caught as the result of elaborate team work.

It is said, in consequence, that the modern policeman has less initiative and to some extent less authority. In other days the delinquent boy would get a sharp cuff on the ear to deter him; the best a modern policeman is able to do is to haul him before a juvenile court. It may be for the best that the idea of a policeman as a children's bogeyman has disappeared, but there are many who believe that the policeman's summary justice of other times was a more efficient deterent than the present complicated formula.

The modern bobby, like most of us, is both victim and beneficiary of the scientific age. A hundred years ago he started at $2.50 a week. The first chief constable was paid less than the probationary constable of today. And they deal with a changed social structure. Drunks and vagabonds were the primary care of those earlier policemen; today it is more likely to be drunken drivers and vagabond automobiles parked where they should not be.

But the real achievement is an ever-increasing efficiency in the prevention of crime, and a sane discipline without the terrors of a police state. If you will, a hundred years of muddling through to a monumental alchemy of traditional British compromise and efficiency—and the British policeman is still more wonderful than his continental counterpart.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

ONE advantage radio enjoys over TV is that we do not know how large the mouths are of those who entertain us with song.

On TV lately there have been some shocking oral exhibitions. A girl whose voice I have enjoyed for years on radio turns out to be a sort of cornucopia. Her mouth extends from ear to ear. It is bastioned with white, terrifying teeth like a crenellated Norman keep. It is a mouth for eating watermelon. With such an expanse, and such teeth, I think she has twice as many across the front as you or I—she could bite half way through a rugby ball. It is not a mouth in the ordinary sense at all, but a lobby, a porte-cochere, a bay, a gulf.

Yet out of it comes a most agreeable voice. Unlike some of our singers blessed with smaller vocal orifices, she does not have to expose her uvula to us on her high notes. Nonetheless, it is a little bit terrifying to face such a maw on TV.

It may be sheer prejudice on my part; but I do not observe the same extraordinary expanse of mouth on women other than Americans. The wide expanse, the flashing barricade of teeth is peculiarly American. English women may have large mouths; but they pucker them. Scottish women have a natural reserve that causes them to tighten their lips. French women pronounce that tricky letter "U" with the most delicate framing of the Cupid's bow. German and Scandinavian women have to deal with the umlaut, which I think may have been invented purely for the sake of ladies' lips.

But the American woman, from childhood, is trained on hot dogs and hamburgers, three-deckers and double-header ice cream cones. In high school, her highest ambition is to be on the cheer-leader's crew. She is encouraged to hoot and holler. Everything calls for a good wide generous mouth. In infancy, she is introduced to the toothbrush before she meets the catechism; and apparently the toothbrushes get larger and larger. There must be some explanation of the characteristic American starlet mouth; and I have only picked out the obvious ones.

How about the men? Don't small American boys have to eat hot dogs too? It may be. But the truth is that when, on TV, a man opens his mouth like a chasm, I turn the knob and get another station.

Really 'Accidental'?

(From The Edmonton Journal)

ONE of the most loosely used words in the English language is "accidental." The Oxford Dictionary defines it as "happening by chance, casual, fortuitous." Yet coroners' juries seem to have some different definition of their own.

In Manitoba the other day, an inquest was held following a disastrous automobile collision in which 10 persons lost their lives. The evidence indicated that one of the drivers—who was among the dead—had been drinking for several hours before the crash. The jury returned a verdict of "accidental death."

One wonders just what was accidental about this tragedy. Could it be described as "happening by chance, casual, fortuitous?" On the contrary, something of the sort was almost certain to happen; it followed inevitably from the combination of drinking and driving.

Perhaps we need another word to describe these highway massacres.

Letters to the Editor

Foreign Control

With regard to the article by Gerald Waring in your issue of the Jan. 5, when he presented the union's case against the CPR, I feel that he failed to mention two most important points.

(1) The Transport Commissioners have the duty under law to safeguard the travelling public, and consequently it is not the exclusive right of the union or the railway to pass on safety factors. In view of this I feel that the case against the CPR should have been presented to the transport commissioners for decision and that the union cannot base their strike on this point.

(2) The CPR agreed to accept the decision of the transport commissioners or any other body duly set up by the government to arbitrate this point but the union would not accept this proposal. In fact the CPR agreed to accept the decision of the conciliation board on this and other points of dispute, but the union refused to accept the majority decision of that board.

I am a strong supporter of the wage-earner and unions but I do feel that disputes in public utilities such as railroads should be subject to enforced arbitration with an impartial chairman. It seems tragic to me that our nation should be subjected to inconvenience and a disruption of our whole economic system by a union which only represents some 2,800 workers and takes its orders from Cleveland.

I think it is about time that our federal government took steps to legislate that all Canadian labor and unions should be controlled and operated by Canadians from headquarters in Canada. I do not know of any other nation in the world which boasts of national sovereignity and which allows its labor and unions to be controlled by foreigners from foreign headquarters. In addition, dues collected in Canada from Canadian workers are remitted to these foreign parent unions, and I feel that it is about time that this position was corrected by legislation.

Labels for Drivers

After reading Mildrid L. Vining's letter this morning (Jan. 5), I want to say I agree with her 100 per cent. I think the idea is capital and we of the better driver class should petition the government to put into effect something along that line.

I am only a newcomer in Victoria but I must admit there are a few bad drivers who do not conform to the rules of the road. Where I come from in Edmonton things are much worse, which is not saying much for Edmonton, I'll admit. If the plan was in effect there half the drivers would be carrying blue or green discs. Calgary is just as bad.

The same idea could also be used on the highways where the same bad drivers cause so many accidents.

I must say I have found the majority of drivers here in Victoria to be very good, except for the few who step on the gas instead of looking at the speedometer. Let us all get behind this scheme to make people better drivers. It's worth looking into.

JOHN W. M. FERGUSON.

Parents Should Pay

As the father of a child who has just started school and of one to start in three years, I would like to express my opinion on the school referendum.

Yes, it is the duty of all citizens to pay towards the education of our children in an effort to make a better world for all generations to come. However, the point we must focus our attention on is this: should pensioners or for that matter anyone who has raised their families, be expected to pay towards education to the same extent as the parents themselves? To this I would say 'no.' I would be quite willing to pay a tuition fee towards my children's education, which is so valuable to them and to the country as a whole.

I have no television, Cadillac convertible, and have my financial problems, mortgages, etc., like many others, but I would be glad to drop Christmas liquor expenses or save elsewhere and give $25 or so towards the education costs of my children.

Better this than put more misery into the lives of our already tax-poor pensioners. Let everyone pay a basic rate towards education costs and let the parents shoulder the rest with the exception of the financially unable.

RAY E. TROUTMAN.

Valiant Attempt

Your correspondent F. T. Rogers lashes out at Reeve Ash, stating nothing specific. If one looks over the record of the past year, Reeve Ash has made a valiant attempt to put into practice every promise he made when he was given an overwhelming mandate by the electors. It can be said too that he made many changes that have been of benefit to the ratepayers.

F. T. Rogers suggests that we listen to the men who served on the council for years and "know what's what." We have been doing that for years at a cost of thousands of dollars to the taxpayers, and getting nowhere.

From the results of the last election when about 28 per cent of 20,000 voters voted, it looks as though Saanich is destined to continue as a horse and buggy district.

More power to Reeve Ash, who has really tried to get on with the job. He has my sympathies.

Economic Sovereignty

Many Canadians, amongst them Messers Paterson, James and Palmer, who wrote in the press of Jan. 5, are critical of the fact that the firemen's union involved in the current rail strike is receiving orders from officials in a foreign country, the U.S.A. They see in this a loss of Canadian sovereignty.

I am appreciative of their feelings in this matter, but am at a loss to understand why these same people are not equally critical of the fact (at least in letters to the press) that the ownership of the CPR and many other valuable industries and raw materials has fallen into U.S. hands, and which are being controlled and directed from abroad.

Loss of economic sovereignty is bound to lead to loss of political independence. However, I am sure that our organized labor movement is becoming aware of these problems and am confident that they will be able to solve them in their own way and in their own good time—without outside direction.

Generous Response

May I express my sincere thanks to an anonymous donor for the generous gift of money to provide a Christmas dinner to a widow of an ex-serviceman who had served his country in time of need. It also provided another family of wife and children who were in need. To the ex-service women branch of the Canadian Legion for their help in providing hampers to needy families in Esquimalt at Christmas.

Such generous response to appeals should not go unrewarded, and as it is impossible for me to thank each one personally for their kindness, I hope they will take this medium of my expression of sincere appreciation.

JOHN CAREY,
Welfare Officer,

Man's Inhumanity

Just for the record may I voice in appreciation I am sure the feelings of all of your readers who read the editorial of Jan. 4, "Man Without a Country."

We cheer the champions for victory, and grieve over "man's inhumanity to man."

Construction Up

SIDNEY—North Saanich regulated area building permits issued in 1956 increased more than 50 per cent above the 1955 figures.

There were 36 dwellings constructed during the year, valued at $215,800, compared with 33 worth $183,000 in 1955.

Miscellaneous construction, including additions, alterations, garages, sheds and schools, amounted to $259,950, as against $126,350 the previous year. Most of this increase was due to school construction.

Inco Metals at Work in Canada

Copper is one of 14 elements obtained from Inco ores. Inco produces over 250,000,000 lbs. of copper a year. And more than half of all this copper goes to Canadian companies for the manufacture of copper tube and fittings and hundreds of other useful products. Copper tube and fittings for supply and drainage plumbing are easy and economical to install... and will usually last as long or longer than the buildings in which they are used.

INCO COPPER in millions of feet of plumbing for Canadian homes

. . . more jobs in Canada

FOR LONG LIFE and trouble-free service, there's nothing quite like copper plumbing in the home. It won't rust; it resists corrosion; under normal conditions, it will last as long as the building.

Today, nearly all the new homes being built in Canada have copper plumbing. And more than half of this copper comes from Inco.

Here's how Inco Copper helps make jobs for Canadians. Down in the mines, Inco workmen blast out the ore. It is milled, smelted and refined at Inco's plants in Copper Cliff, Ontario. Refined copper is sold to Canadian companies for the manufacture of tube, fittings and other plumbing items. Then plumbers install them in Canadian homes.

All these operations help provide jobs for thousands of workmen. That's how Inco helps stimulate the growth and development of industry in Canada.

VIEWS OF SPORT

By Red Smith

NEW YORK—Little Paddy Driscoll was the biggest and and busiest man on the field. As quarterback, he directed his team's attack and played safety on defence, running back nine punts for 115 yards. He drop-kicked a 307-yard field goal for the first score and caught a pass from Harry Ellson which he carried to the three-yard line, setting up the first touchdown.

He ran the ball from scrimmage 13 times for 34 yards, not counting a dash of 25 yards which officials called back. He threw eight passes and completed four, including one to George Halas for 32 yards and a touchdown. Right after the opening kick-off he had put the opposition in the hole with a 60-yard punt, and thereafter his kick travelled an average of 43 yards.

That was 38 years ago, and in all the years since no crowd in Pasadena, Calif., has seen a finer football player than the little guy who led the Gobs of Great Lakes to victory over the Marines of Mare Island, 17 to 0, in the Rose Bowl game of 1919.

Driscoll at quarterback, Halas at end—they are names to restore the youth of any kid who was growing up in the Middle West at the time of World War I. Seven years were to pass before Halas and Driscoll would get together again. They're still together.

Sign of Warning

When George Halas announced his retirement as coach of the Chicago Bears a year or so ago, he had Sid Luckman on his staff and Big George Connor and Luke Johnsos among others. It was taken for granted that one of these younger men would succeed to the boss' job. There were not, however, any pretty speeches about handing the torch on to the rising generation.

The man Halas picked was Paddy Driscoll, 66 years old, and it should have been a warning to the National Football League. It should have served notice that Halas believed he had a great team coming up for 1956. He was never going to stick old Paddy with a stiff.

They never call him Little Paddy any longer. He is a stout man now, bespectacled, with a good deal of skin above his rather florid face. He is a figure of distinction in the financial world, owner of a seat on the Chicago Exchange, better than a green hand in the wheat and soybean market.

He is also a legend, a mighty figure out of football's golden past.

How to Get a Raise

Driscoll was a brilliant halfback at Northwestern before the Navy fitted him for bellbottom pants and assigned him to Great Lakes along with Halas, Jimmy Conzelman, Charley Bachman and the others. In 1919 a professional team in Hammond, Ind., hired Paddy for $50 a game though Driscoll held out for $75. Before his first game was over he had run 63 yards for a touchdown, kicked a field goal, and got his price.

In 1920 Chris O'Brien was happy to pay Driscoll $300 a game to join the Chicago Cardinals, then called the Racine Cardinals because they played in Normal Park at Sixty-third and Racine. Fans in those days were babbling about a play that Paddy didn't remember making for Hammond. Rapped on the noggin in one pile-up, he had got up and called the signal for a pass but instead of throwing the ball he had drop-kicked 55 yards for a field goal.

Now he started kicking the heart out of Halas' Staley A.C., later to become the big bad Bears. Time and again he murdered them. In 1922, for example, the Cardinals beat the Bears twice, 6 to 0, and 9 to 0. In the first game Driscoll drop-kicked two field goals; in the second he drop-kicked three. In 1925, his last year with the Cardinals, he made four field goals against Columbus, the longest sailing 50 yards.

The Last Boo

That was the year the matchless Red Grange became a pro, playing his first game with the Bears against the Cardinals on Thanksgiving Day. A capacity crowd of 36,000 in Wrigley Field was bitterly disappointed. Driscoll punted 25 times for the Cardinals, successfully steering 22 of the kicks away from the redhead.

Grange never did manage to get loose, and when time ran out without a score for either side, the fans booed.

"I hate to hear 'em do that to a young fellow like Grange," said Paddy, walking past his wife on the way to the showers. "It wasn't his fault."

"Don't worry about Grange," Mrs. Driscoll said, "they're booing you."

Those were the last boos Paddy ever heard from Bear fans. Halas and his players and his followers had had enough. They couldn't beat Driscoll, so in 1926 they joined him.

Jackie Robinson, whose retirement last week caused almost as much controversy as when he became the first Negro to play major league baseball, hangs up his Brooklyn Dodger uniform and glove as a sign that his retirement is definite. Robinson, who was traded to New York Giants Dec. 13, said he wouldn't play again for "a million dollars."

Rookie Stars in Canuck Win—Flyers Edge Stampeders, 6-5

Vancouver Canucks bounced back from their 4-2 setback at Victoria on Monday to defeat Winnipeg Warriors by the same score and move within seven points of the Seattle Americans in the Western Division of the Western Hockey League.

In last night's other game, Edmonton Flyers again pulled three points ahead of Brandon Regals in the Eastern Division by taking a 6-5 overtime verdict from Calgary Stampeders.

Winnipeg	40	11	27	2	119	154	24

Last night's scores: Calgary 5 at Edmonton 6, Winnipeg 2 at Vancouver 4.
Next games: Tonight, Winnipeg at New Westminster, Edmonton at Calgary.

Walter Peacosh, a rookie brought up from the Okanagan Hockey League, led the Canucks by scoring two crucial goals.

The youngster came through each time the scrappy Warriors had fought back to within a goal after trailing by 2-0 and 3-1.

On the first goal by Peacosh, the game-winner, Vancouver's Ray Mikulan became the second goalkeeper this season to earn an assist. He cleared the puck to Ralph Keller, who made the opening for Peacosh.

Ahead by 3-1 going into the third period, Canucks once again played their tight, defensive hockey and they made the lead stand up although Warriors managed 14 shots at Mikulan.

Edmonton fans saw one of the best games of the season as the Stamps lost a 3-1 lead, then came from 3-5 in the third period to force overtime.

Defenceman Hugh Coflin broke it up after just over four minutes of overtime. Playing his first game since being injured some weeks ago, Coflin beat Hank Bassen with a 35-footer on a play with rookie Bill MacFarland and sophomore Bill McCreary.

Player Pool Guards Against Possibility of Plane Crash

CHICAGO (NANA) — What would happen if an entire big league baseball team were wiped out in a single plane or train wreck?

Baseball's magnates, already harried by trying to solve all the current problems of the major league sport, will turn their attentions at their February meetings in New York city to a possibility which has been so grim that they have faced up to it before.

Both the National and American Leagues have had committees at work on disaster plans. It now appears likely that they will involve establishing player pools from names submitted by the clubs within each loop. Plus a plan of purchase by the "victim club" financed by insurance money.

Although increasing air travel by the clubs makes necessary such planning, it is the increasing safety of air and rail transportation, which makes it possible at all, because it is believed that the clubs will have no difficulty in obtaining coverage as high as $1,500,000 for each trip.

EXPANSION HINT?

The fact that the magnates are thinking along these lines may also reflect the growing belief that in the not too distant future major league baseball will be extended to th Pacific Coast after all. Some owners have heretofore balked at the necessity for air transportation for the long hops beyond the Mississippi whenever propositions of moving to San Francisco and Los Angeles have come up.

It was learned here during the annual yuletide conclave sponsored by president Will Harridge of the American League that the junior circuit's committee is thinking of creating a pool by requiring each club to supply the names of 10 players it would be willing to give up to the common cause of putting a stricken club back on its feet.

The club whose roster is either wiped out or seriously depleted would have the option of selecting up to three replacements from each list, and will pay a graduated scale, such as $50,000 for the first player, $75,000 for the second, and $100,000 for the third, in order to discourage taking too many prime offerings from one team.

Actually there never has been a major loss of this kind to a big league baseball team and such accidents are extremely rare in sports history.

In May, 1949, 18 members of the Turin soccer squad, the European champions, were killed in an air crash in Italy. Collections of cash and offers of players by clubs throughout Europe helped rebuild the team, though it hasn't since regained the championship.

Claims Seven-Minute Kick Not Near His Best Effort

TORONTO (CP)—Dickie Digironimo, star outside left of the Lazio soccer team, Canadian continental league champions, Tuesday was fined $100 or 30 days for kicking a referee.

Dennis Prinold, the referee, said the player kicked him in the groin during a game Nov. 4 after he had awarded a penalty shot to the opposing team.

"I fell to the ground and it was seven minutes before I could stand up again," said Prinold.

Commented Digironimo: "It wasn't a big kick I gave him. If I had meant to kick him hard he could never have finished the game."

Eight Rinks Set For Zone Finals

Arrangements are complete for the Vancouver Island British Consols finals, to be held at Duncan on Saturday and Sunday, it was reported last night by Bill Wadsworth, chairman of the Zone 1 committee.

Two rinks from each of the Alberni Valley, Nanaimo, Duncan and Victoria Curling Clubs will play a round-robin series to decide the rink which will represent Zone 1 in the B.C. final, scheduled at Nelson February 4-10.

Four of the rinks have already played their first game. Tony Gutoski won from Wes Young Monday night as the two Victoria rinks got their game out of the way. At Nanaimo, Brock Wilson got off on the right foot as he defeated clubmate George Lunn.

GAMES FRIDAY

The two Alberni rinks, skipped by Harry Stirzaker and Harry Spottiswood, and the Duncan rinks, skipped by Tony Folk and Glen Harper, will play each other on Duncan ice on Friday night.

Three draws will be played on Saturday—at 10 a.m. and 2 and 7.30 p.m.—and the final three draws will be played at 8 a.m. and 1 and 4.30 p.m. on Sunday. The banquet is scheduled at 5 Saturday evening.

A numbered draw has already been made by Wadsworth and skips are requested to report at the Duncan Curling Club at 9.30 Saturday morning to draw their own numbers.

Lunn's rink is again back intact for another try at the B.C. final, but it will be skipped this time by Don McRae. Lunn will be vice-skip, Art Quinney will curl second rocks and Jack Whitlam will lead off.

Barney Holm, Bob Alexander and S. Chisholm are the other members of the Wilson rink.

The two Duncan rinks are rated as the ones to beat on their home ice. Hoffman is vice-skip for Folk. Bill Thomas will throw second rocks and Wadsworth will lead.

Harper has Harvey Hodge at third, youngster Gary Merrett at second and Vern Kaspick at lead.

Curling for Gutoski are Craig Lawson, Bill Dunstan, Jr., and Gordie Robertson. John Adams, Bert Watts and Jim Redlin are the other members of the Navy rink led by Young.

Personnel of the Alberni rinks was not available last night.

Gutoski has won the Zone 1 final for the past two years, but with a different rink. In 1955 and 1956, he had Dr. Kirby Moysey at third, Don Jamieson at second and Dick Pick at lead.

Rose's Take Big Lead In Play-Off Argument

Rose Fuel built up a comfortable 19-point lead in its two-game, total-point series with Farmer Construction for the fourth playoff spot in the Senior "B" Men's Basketball League last night, downing Farmers, 63-44 in the first game of the series at Victoria High School.

Second game will be played at Vic High Thursday night at 8.30. Winner of the series will play Dickinson & Dunn in a best-of-three semi-final.

CLARKSON GETS 23

Paul Clarkson dumped in 23 points, 17 of them in the second half, to lead the Fuelmen. Bernie Anderson topped the Farmers with 13 points.

In an exhibition game last night, a combined Drakes-Morrisons squad handed Victoria College its second defeat of the season, 56-52. Chuck Bennett scored 23 points for the winners.

Scorers follow:

Farmers—Donahue 4, Shields 2, Martin 4, Strang 3, Hodges 4, Anderson 13, Ranson 2, Bond 2, Garner 6, Total 44.
Rose Fuel—Clarkson 23, Simpson 8, Birch 11, McMeekin, Rittich 8, Hunter, Stoker 12, Total 63.

Boucher Says 'Dirty Hockey' By Flyers Is Poile's Fault

General-manager Frank Boucher of Brandon Eagles said yesterday he would forward a formal complaint to president Al Leader of the Western Hockey League on the "dirty hockey" played by the Edmonton Flyers, and placed the blame for the Flyers' rough play directly on the shoulders of coach Norman "Bud" Poile.

Boucher was complaining particularly about play in a game played in Brandon Saturday night, which the Regals won, 3-1. The Flyers took 57 of the 65 minutes in penalties and a riot between Edmonton players and Regal fans was narrowly averted.

"I was amazed at the behavior of some Edmonton players," Boucher said. "And I can't believe they would play that way unless they were so directed. I can only conclude that they were working under directions from Poile.

"A coach can prevent this from happening. Obviously, with the Flyers, there is no control from the bench."

Tired Curling Tourists Lose, 75-34, at Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP)—Scotland's touring curlers, suffering the weariness and pains of a tight travel schedule, remained winless Tuesday, losing their five matches in Edmonton for a 0-15 mark since they began their 20-city Strathcona Cup tour in Montreal three days ago.

The Scots lost to the five Edmonton and district rinks by an aggregate score of 75-34. That, combined with a 71-34 loss in five matches in Montreal Sunday and 75-32 loss in Saskatoon Monday, left the Scots behind, 221-110, in the over-all point total which determines the cup winner.

The Scots, several of them reporting swollen ankles and aching muscles from only nine and a half hours' sleep since they arrived at Montreal Sunday, couldn't match rocks with the Canadian rinks.

They arrived too late to attend a breakfast planned for them, but were welcomed at a civic luncheon at noon. The provincial government treated them Tuesday night at a banquet. They fly to Victoria today to continue the series.

New Timing Devices Likely to Make Olympic Records Last

By RALPH C. CRAIR

MELBOURNE (NANA)—Because the eye—if it's an electronic one—is quite a bit quicker than the hand, records set at the 16th Olympiad here are apt to stand for many years to come.

That's because, the man who timed Olympic events says, all present field event records are a tenth to two-tenths of a second shorter than they should be.

Charles Sickert, a 38-year-old lawyer-turned-timer, headed a team of nine Swiss watchmakers and engineers who installed 11 miles of cable and two-and-a-half tons of equipment at competition sites in Melbourne. He timed the Olympics in London in 1948 and at Helsinki four years ago and has clocked the Pan-American Games at Mexico City, Mediterranean games at Barcelona and Asian Games at New Delhi and Manila in between.

Old records of Olympic performances are inaccurate, Sickert says, because they did not take into account the reaction time of timekeepers and judges holding stop watches. Comparison of official times with those recorded electronically at Helsinki, he says, showed an invariable discrepancy of up to two-tenths of a second in the athlete's favor.

The 1956 Olympics may be the last clocked by human hand, for the International Olympic Committee is now considering adoption of electronic photo-finish devices by Sickert's firm, Louis Brandt and Frere S. A., the makers of Omega watches.

Sickert's company has already plugged the starter's gun into its electronic gadgets. It converted standard Swiss army 1.5 mm pistols so that the trigger works as an electrical switch at the same time it fires a blank cartridge. In all Olympic running events, the pictol starts the operation of a photo-finish and time-clocking camera which is in use even if its times are not yet accepted as official.

Present track records, Sickert says, are recorded on tenths of a second—a comparatively lengthy record of time which he considers wildly inaccurate.

In the 100-metre dash at Helsinki, he recalls, six runners flashed across the finish line in that period of time. The electronic timer will record the order of arrival if the runners are only 1/100th of a second apart.

"In relying on human timekeepers as we are here," Sickert says, "we know that times will not be the same in the morning and in the afternoon because of fatigue. And we know that a timer is apt to be inattentive or worried or have a cold, any one of which might affect his reactions to the starter's gun." Present Olympic times are computed by taking the median figure of those recorded by three or more officials. This procedure, Sickert says, doesn't satisfy the need for accuracy because all of the men may be slow.

While the International Olympic Committee has not yet abandoned old-fashioned methods for timing events, it has introduced the electronic age back where the race begins. For running events with staggered starting blocks, Melbourne officials installed small amplifiers to carry the sound of the gun to all runners instantaneously.

Timing the world's biggest athletic show requires literally years of preparation. Every device used at Melbourne, for instance, was tested for satisfactory operation both at 22 degrees below zero Fahrenheit and at 158 degrees. Every stopwatch was subjected to a 33-day series of tests at laboratories in Switzerland before being flown or shipped for use. Some 250 high-precision stopwatches worth $250 each, 200 chronographs (which operate for longer times) worth $500 each, and 85 other clocks worth $250 each were in use here. Among devices used at the 16th Olympiad for the first time is a self-honking basketball clock, one that measures overtime periods, and emits automatic beeps when time is up. The timekeeper sits before a switchboard to control normal clock-stopping periods during play.

Sickert—who became interested in timing sports while competing in swimming events for the University of Berne—has a crusader's dedication to the cause of accuracy. He admits, however, that the human problem sometimes gets in his way.

His firm, for instance, has figured out one method of insuring absolutely accurate swimming times. Competitors, he says, would wear on one finger a rubber glove-sleeve containing a tiny particle of radioactive material, less than that used in a fluorescent wrist watch. Contact of the glove with a wall surface painted with a radioactive substance would establish an electrical contact and provide far more reliable measurement than the vision of a judge peering into water and thrashing arms.

But, Sickert says, this idea is apparently impractical. Swimmers won't wear the gloves, he reports, because "they think their fingers will drop off."

SECOND SERIES STARTS: The second series of winter medal competitions for Victoria and district golfers begins, weather permitting, at Royal Colwood, Sunday.

The second round will be played at Gorge Vale on Feb. 9, and the third and final round at Uplands on March 9.

To compete for the medal, players must take part in all three contests.

The first winter medal played during October, November and December was won easily by Bill McColl, but a number of notable low-handicap men did not compete, and this time it is hoped to secure a more representative entry.

This column has for some time held the view that the district committee might make its winter competition more popular if it allowed players a little more latitude so far as participation is concerned.

I do not think the quality of the competition would suffer if the winner was the player with the best four of any of the six winter medal rounds. In this way a player unable to take part in any one event would not be debarred from further participation.

HARD TO HOLD: The city buttons this season are proving easier to win than to hold. They changed hands once again on a first defence at Uplands, Sunday, when Laurie Kerr and his new partner, Bill Court, succumbed to a young Victoria club pairing by one hole.

The new winners are Doug Munro, the city junior champion, and Einar Brynjolfson, nephew of a one-time outstanding local performer.

Munro is now ranking as Victoria's most promising junior golfer and his powerful finish on Sunday, in which he won the last two holes, stamps him as a youngster with the right competitive temperament.

Next challengers on the list are an Uplands pair, Gil Briscoe and Bill Wightman.

Still holding the junior buttons are Dale Dalziel and Bill Wakeham of Uplands.

DRIVE FOR JUNIORS: Gorge Vale is all prepared to launch a drive to win new junior golfing addicts during the coming season. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Thirlwell are in charge of a program in which local boys and girls, aged up to 18, are to be offered free coaching lessons by club pro Joe Pryke.

Clubs are to be made available by Gorge Vale members and they will be loaned to the youngsters until such time as they decide whether they want to take up the game seriously or not.

Secretary Leo Derman tells me that already a number of girls have indicated their interest in the new plan.

A room in the basement of the club is being turned into junior headquarters with games facilities, and during the season the club will hold supervised junior dances in the clubhouse.

Cliff Horwood, the youthful left-hand star of the Victoria club, shot his second hole-in-one at the weekend. His ace was scored at the second hole.

Two 13 handicap golfers scooped the pool at the Victoria Golf Club's par sweepstake Saturday. Cmdr. Kevin Reilly and Bob Gunning each finished three up. In runners-up spot were Herb Morris (another 13 handicapper), Cliff Horwood (9) and A. Barry (24). Each was two up.

BOB FELLER

After 20 years in baseball, during which he won 266 games and set an all-time strike-out record, pitcher Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians walks out of the club office carrying his famous number 19 uniform, which will be retired by the Indians. Feller has retired from baseball to devote his full time to business.

Mainland Five To Play Here On Saturday

Vancouver Cloverdales, in second place in their own league, take on Victoria senior "B" all-stars at Central Junior High School Saturday night as local officials have another try at staging an inter-city basketball game.

Two weeks ago Vancouver C-Fun was scheduled to play the "B" all-stars here, but fog grounded all planes in Vancouver and the game had to be cancelled. This time, to make sure they arrive, the Cloverdales will come by boat.

Cloverdales will be coached by Art Chapman, former Victoria Dominoes star, while the Victoria "B" club will be hossed by a former teammate of Chapman's, Norm Baker, coach of Dickinson & Dunn.

Playing on the "B" team will be Vince Clarkson, Gordie Jones, George Denison, Johnny Clark, Barry Jackson, Howie Tooby, Gary Taylor, Don Hendry, Garry Gilbert and Baker.

Game time is 8 p.m.

Scots Behind in Cup Curling—Try to Pick Up Here Tonight

Scotland's 26 touring curlers, who have not fared at all well in the early stages of their Dominion-wide trek in defence of the Strathcona Cup, arrive in Victoria today to play their third five-game cup series in as many nights.

The Scots are seeking a fifth victory in the competition with Canadian curlers, and have won the last two times the competition has been staged. Lord Strathcona donated teh cup in 1909 to commemorate the first visit of a Canadian club to Scotland, in January of that year, and the two countries have played for it at irregular intervals ever since.

RUBBER SERIES

This present tour represents the "rubber" match. Each side has won four times, with the Scots defending on this trip. Canada won it the first year and retained it in 1912, lost in 1921 in Scotland, but regained it in 1923. The Scots took over again in 1926, and won in 1949 and 1950 after Canada regained the cup in 1938.

Scotland enters the match at Victoria well behind in the aggregate scoring total, which will decide the trophy winner. Perhaps over-tired from too much travel and too many banquets, the Scots have dropped 10 straight games and trail on the aggregate score by 144-66. A total of 100 games will be played on the tour.

Getting on the ice only a few hours after their plane trip from Scotland, the Scots lost all five games at Montreal by decisive scores on Sunday, trailing, 71-34, by aggregate score. They fared no better in Saskatoon Monday, losing five more games, 75-32, to strong northern Saskatchewan rinks.

PENTICTON NEXT

Another five-game series was scheduled for Edmonton last night. After playing at Victoria, the visitors play at Penticton, then work their way across Canada, winding up the tour in Halifax Jan. 31.

There doesn't appear to be too much rest in store for the Scots in Victoria, either. From the time they arrive at Patricia Bay Airport this morning at 11.15 until they begin curling at 8.00, they have a busy schedule mapped out for them.

They will travel in a motorcade to Victoria, attend a reception at Government House, tour the city, visit city hall, and attend a banquet at Victoria Curling Club. Also on the agenda is a tour through the plywood division of the B.C. Forest Products plant.

A capacity crowd of about 700 is expected to be at the Curling Club to witness the matches. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Twenty curlers, most of them from the host club, will compete with the Scots in the five Strathcona Cup games, and an additional "spare" rink has been formed in case officials travelling with the visitors should accept an invitation to curl a friendly game.

Two members from each of the other three Island clubs—Duncan, Nanaimo and Alberni Valley, will be on the cup teams, and the RCN and Civil Service Curling Clubs will send one curler each.

Strathcona Cup rinks will be skipped by Max Zabel, Gar Taylor and Gordie Robertson of the host club. Ron Harper of Duncan Curling Club, and Bob Fuller of Nanaimo.

A few tickets will be available for the banquet and reception, as well as for the actual matches.

It Also Happens in Soccer: Manager Booted for Losing

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP) — Directors of Notts County soccer club kept long-distance telephone lines busy Tuesday in a continuing search for a new manager and trainer.

Monday, Notts County, firmly mired at the bottom of the second division, parted company with manager George Poyser and trainer Vic Potts. The decision to replace the two men followed County's shattering 3-1 home defeat Saturday by non-league Rhyl in the third round of the Football Association cup competition.

Notts County has only won three of 25 league matches this season.

One man believed in the running for the managerial post is Tommy Lawton, player-manager of non-league Kettering. Lawton helped steer the County into the second division seven years ago.

Poyser, a veteran of 30 years in the soccer wars, went to County as manager in 1953.

Roof Parking for New Eaton's in Nanaimo

A $1,000,000 department store with roof parking will be built in Nanaimo by the T. Eaton Co., Ltd. The two storey store will occupy 55,000 square feet and will have a customer entrance from the roof to the second floor. Architects have utilized to advantage the split-level hillside setting of the property in the heart of Nanaimo on Victoria Crescent. A natural approach to the roof off Cavan Street at the rear will provide roof parking for 70 cars. An immediate start is planned on the store which will be the most modern department store on Vancouver Island.

North Cowichan Projects

Garbage Dump Sites Sought

NORTH COWICHAN — An intensified search for garbage dump sites in the south end of the municipality, including the area around Duncan, will be undertaken by North Cowichan, Reeve C. A. P. Murison told council Monday.

He said that, subject to ratepayers' approval, garbage collection will be organized in Crofton and Maple Bay.

A street numbering project will be undertaken during the latter part of May, June, July and part of August and plans call for large-scale contour maps of the municipality, if costs can be kept down, he said.

In any event, contour maps of a large part of the municipality will be made so that subdivisions, water and sewer extensions can be properly planned, he added.

Other projects, in addition to an extensive roads program still to be adopted, include a special procedure by-law for public works; complete the levelling and sanitation at Crofton beach; to survey Fuller's Lake Park and provide an access road and undertake brush clearings; to prepare by-laws for extension of the Chemainus sewer system and a sewer system for Crofton, subject to development there; and prepare for extension of the Crofton fire protection district.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stockholders of Trans-Mountain Oil Pipe Line Co. Tuesday ratified a five-for-one split of the company's stock which has been selling at $115 a share.

A special act of Parliament to amend the company's act of incorporation now is required to make the move effective.

Let's Have Own Police Force Port Alberni Mayor Suggests

PORT ALBERNI — Establishment of a four-constable special municipal police force and reduction of the RCMP detachment by four members has been put forward by Mayor Loran Jordon.

In his inaugural address to council, Mayor Jordon called for a study of the traffic situation in Port Alberni and suggested a municipal force could take care of enforcement of the traffic by-law and other city ordinances.

"You must agree with me that enforcement of our parking regulations is a farce and stern measures will have to be taken," he told council.

He said engineers must be instructed to prepare the necessary information so that tenders can be called on the $140,000 sewer project approved by voters in the December election.

He also advocated a start on improving water lines from the source to the distribution area as, he said, existing lines will be inadequate with the community expanding at its present rate.

He predicted Port Alberni would see, in 1957, its largest home-building year, provided money restrictions of the federal government are relaxed.

The mayor saw little hope for a civic centre until many other pressing problems have been overcome, although he encouraged exploratory work in that direction. He thought the state of the money market and rates of interest at present would prevent such an undertaking.

He foresaw action on Ald. W. C. Hamilton's suggestion of another "cross-town" road and repeal of the road and poll tax by-law.

He welcomed back to the council table the three re-elected aldermen, J. R. Dalton, William Goddard and Jack Perry. No change was made in the committee membership except for the addition of Ald. Goddard to the traffic committee, increasing it to three members.

'Worth Its Cost'

Island Seeks Ferry Service

PARKSVILLE—A delegation from Parksville and District and Lasqueti Island Chambers of Commerce will see Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi in Victoria Jan. 15 to press a request for ferry service between Lasqueti Island and French Creek.

The service is considered a vital need for the economy and future prosperity of Lasqueti Island. Union Steamships recently nearly doubled freight rates to the island, and reduced its service to one call every two weeks.

A letter recently received from Mr. Gaglardi said the cost of a ferry, suitable for the service, would be approximately $100,000. Members of both chambers feel the expenditure would be justified, as the ferry link would be equal to construction of a 10-mile stretch of highway.

For some time now the island's mail has been sent and received through Parksville by water taxi operated by Compton Domvile.

Qualicum Beach and Nanaimo Chambers of Commerce have promised support of the project.

Civic Banquet

Peace, It's Wonderful Judge Tells Albernis

ALBERNI—People of the Alberni district should be thankful for the harmony between city councils and the prosperity of the district, Judge L. A. Hanna told a joint Alberni-Port Alberni civic banquet Monday night.

Judge Hanna had earlier administered the oath of office to re-elected aldermen in Port Alberni and Magistrate T. M. Patterson had officiated at swearing-in ceremonies at Alberni City Hall.

Signs of progress and the growing pains of expansion were referred to by John Squire, MLA, who spoke at the civic banquet. He pointed out that the residents of the more isolated areas of the constituency should not be forgotten during the vast development of the Albernis.

He said he will continue to press for roads for the West Coast communities where the people provide the logs for the Alberni industries.

Port Alberni Observes Prayer Day

PORT ALBERNI—An interdenominational day of prayer was observed here Monday under sponsorship of Alberni Valley Ministerial Association.

Held in First United Church, prayers started at 11 a.m. and continued until 9 p.m.

Rev. J. D. Vericerk opened the service and other ministers took part during morning and evening sessions. Rev. A. F. Horsfield conducted a vigil during the early evening.

Women's groups and youth organizations of the various churches continued during the afternoon.

Dial Exchange Contract Let

LADYSMITH (BUP) — Contract has been awarded to A and B Construction of Nanaimo for a $41,500 automatic telephone exchange building at Ladysmith.

B.C. Telephone officials say work on the combination business office and equipment building will begin later this month.

Ladysmith telephones will be switched to the dial system in 1958. Structure will be located on Roberts Street between Esplanade and First.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles
Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H® suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

'What's This About O'Neill?'

Sarcastic Barbs Fly In Saanich Pay Talks

Are We Going to Be Children All Year? Councillors Asked

By DAVID BROWN

Saanich council last night resumed its free-for-all over salaries and indemnities after an overnight rest for vocal chords.

But the barbs that continued to fly across the council table were more sarcastic digs than suggestions, with council personalities receiving more attention than salaries and indemnities.

Occasion was the special session set to discuss salary scales recommended for heads of departments and other chief administrative personnel by Vancouver personnel consultant J. W. A. Fleury.

In quiet unanimity, council wholeheartedly expressed its endorsement of the extensive report, which completely evaluated all positions and made recommendations on salary scales.

The quiet unanimity was shattered a moment later when Coun. J. Ronald Grant, with tongue thrust into cheek, submitted a m[illegible]n asking a 40 per cent cutback in all administrative wages "in line with councillors' indemnities and as a result of what Coun. Worthington referred to last night as our critical inflationary trends."

We're Not Salaried

Councillor Worthington, who moved the 40 per cent reduction in indemnities, passed the night before, said it was an entirely different story.

"We are not salaried," he said. "We are only on expenses."

"We are salaried," retorted Councillor Grant. "It must be included on your T-4 income tax slip . . ."

"I'm not after any salary," answered Councillor Worthington. "All I'm after are my expenses . . ."

"To bring this to a head," said Coun. T. J. O'Neill, "why don't we give back all we received above the $600 scale to the municipality for last year. . . ."

Coun. George Austin attempted to calm the proceedings, with little luck: "I think we are here to evaluate the salaries of our employees. . . ."

To Coun. Grant's defence came Reeeve Arthur Ash: "I think this is correlated with what was said last night. Don't think for a minute that I will stop Coun. Grant. . . ."

"This is an inflationary period," chorused O'Neill, Grant and the reeve.

Coun. Leslie Passmore said, "hearing these slurs again is ridiculous. Are we going to be children all year? Our own amount of remuneration is up to us, to evaluate what we think we're worth. All I ask is that before we raise our indemnities we tell the people that we're going to do just that."

He referred to the council "greenhorns" who sought a raise last year (and won it) without telling the ratepayers during the election campaign.

The reeve exclaimed: "Greenhorns! I have had as many or more years of political life than you."

"If you had only used a little more intelligence in your political life . . ." answered Coun. Passmore.

"If I had no more foresight," retorted the reeve, "than you have exercised in the 17 years your have been in politics, I would have quit long ago."

Coun. Passmore then brought to the reeve's attention the statements the reeve made about Coun. Worthington in the inaugural session, "after the fine talk by Magistrate Hall. What a shame."

"Yes," said Coun. Worthington. "What about Coun. O'Neill? What about O'Neill?"

"Order! Order! Order" shouted the reeve.

"Just a minute, Mr. Reeve," Coun. O'Neill said. "What's this about O'Neill?"

Coun. Worthington: "How many council and committee meetings did Coun. O'Neill attend last year . . .?"

"Order," shouted the reeve again.

"You're just trying to have the last say as usual," retorted Coun. Worthington.

Coun. Grant, who later said the purpose of his motion was to show how ridiculous "we felt their motion was last night," said an increase to employees showed the "total inconsistency of those who voted for the (indemnity reduction) motion" the night before.

The motion lost, 4-3.

Council then proceeded smoothly in spots, long enough to grant severance gratuities to three retiring top employees and fix scales of two others.

Breaking the Language Barrier

Studying the language of their new country are Hungarian refugees Maria and Janos Rozsa, 3280 Ripon Road. They registered last night and joined persons from many other countries to learn English at the Greater Victoria night school class. The English for New Canadians course started into its second term last night at Victoria High School.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Two Youths Admit Nanaimo Burglaries

NANAIMO — Two 16-year-old youths admitted in juvenile court that they were responsible for the latest burglaries to occur here, and also admitted theft of articles.

Altogether, the juveniles admited four charges and were remanded in the custody of their parents for sentence Jan. 15.

Charges relate to break-ins at the Koffee Kup Cake, Brechin, and Smith's Grocery Store, Bastion Street, which occurred over the weekend.

They also pleaded guilty to stealing socks and packet, a drug case and radio, the property of C. R. Smith and A. R. McMillan.

Swimmers

Y's Men Honor Boys

Two young YMCA swimmers have been chosen boys of the month for November and December by the Y's Men's Club.

Ricky Higgins, 11, of 788 Transit Road, was chosen for November. In his third year with the YMCA, Ricky is also a Cub and plays soccer.

One of the main reasons the Monterey School student was chosen was his "cheerful disposition and immediate obedience to leaders' instructions."

December's choice, 10-year-old John Gidden, 2081 Kings, is noted for his swimming ability.

John has been a YMCA member for five years and is also an active gymnast. A Willows School student, he is a stamp collector and baseball player.

The two boys will receive their awards at a Y's Men's meeting Thursday night.

Crystal Tea-Time Magazine Cover

Crystal Garden tea-time is featured as cover subject on this week's issue of Maclean's Magazine.

Canadian artist James Hill painted the scene showing tea being served in the gallery and swimmers splashing in the pool below. British atmosphere of high tea time is emphasized in the painting.

Prosecutions Ordered

'Stamp on the Stamps'

By R. O. MARRION

City police commission at a special meeting in the mayor's office yesterday instructed Police Chief John Blackstock to prosecute under the Criminal Code any merchant dealing in trading stamps in Victoria.

It thus served notice on a New York firm suspected of planning to invade Victoria with trading stamps that it would have none of them.

The action was a sequel to the receipt by city council Monday night of four admissions, from both merchants and consumers, asking for new barriers to be erected against trading stamps, which, one organization explained, are usually issued by merchants on the basis of one stamp for every 10 cents worth of goods bought, and can be exchanged for merchandise at a premium centre.

NO LICENCES

City council will be asked Thursday to reinforce the police commission's action. Mayor Percy Scurrah said, by passing a resolution similar to one recently passed by Vancouver.

The main part of the resolution was that "as this council is positively opposed to trading stamps in any form being introduced in this area, the licence inspector be instructed not to issue a licence to any firm employing the principle of trading stamps in any form in the conduct of their business, without prior reference to council."

The Victoria council received submissions asking it to pass a similar resolution from the Victoria Branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers, the retail merchants' group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the Automotive Retailers' Association and the Victoria Automotive Dealers' Association.

The retail merchants summarized their main points in this way:

"Trading stamp schemes contribute nothing whatsoever to sound or ethical business. In the long run the cost is borne by the consumer.

"The only interests getting any benefit from the scheme are the promoters.

"The schemes are recognized by the federal government as being fraudulent in principle.

"They can be prevented very effectively by action at the municipal level. Once started, they are hard to stop."

City council took no immediate action other than referring the submissions to its finance committee and endorsing a Canadian Association of Consumers resolution calling for plugging of loopholes in Criminal Code provisions against dealing in trading stamps.

But Mayor Scurrah indicated yesterday that there was some urgency. It had been learned, he said, that a New York firm had made a survey in Victoria and "it is suspected that they are going to be brought in by somebody."

Weatherman Says

Front's Fringe Snow-Minded

Snow was still expected to fall on Victoria this morning, though it could be anything from a few flurries to a blanket of five inches, the weatherman said last night.

The fringe of a cold high-pressure zone which slipped over Victoria yesterday, dumped only .6 inches of snow here but much more to the north and south, he said.

But a new depression is now moving down the coast and the fringe of the front and is expected to cause some snow here.

Police Pay Demands 'Totally Unrealistic'

Wage increases demanded by Saanich police were termed "totally unrealistic" last night by Reeve Arthur Ash.

In a letter to the police commission, the Saanich Police Union asked for a 17½-per-cent boost for ranks up to and including first-class constables, and a 20-per-cent boost for corporals, sergeants, juvenile officer and detectives.

"Some people will have to revise their thinking," said Reeve Ash.

Saanich's 19 policemen also asked for a group life insurance scheme, time-and-one-half excused duty for overtime, cumulative sick leave, senior pay for work in a senior capacity and a superannuation contract of their own.

Robert Peterson, president of the union, said policemen's pay had not kept pace with that of workers in industry or with the cost of living.

Speaker Stymied . . . | . . . By School Board

He Can't Take Pages from Their Books

By PETER BRUTON

The problem of page boys for the provincial legislature this session has reached a stalemate — Speaker-designate Thomas Irwin still wants them and the Greater Victoria school board still says "No."

Late last year Mr. Irwin appealed to the school board to give a maximum of 10 "advanced students" time off from school to act as page boys in the legislature which opens Feb. 7.

The school board adamantly refused.

"I believe one of the reasons is that the last session was pretty rough and the board is not sure that this is the sort of environment the boys should be put in," said Mr. Irwin yesterday.

Under the proposal put forward, the boys, aged about 14 or 15, would miss only five afternoons of school every two weeks for the duration of the session, usually about seven or eight weeks.

"I have yet to hear of any one of the boys ever failing a class in the year in which he was a page," said Mr. Irwin, referring to brighter days before 1953 when page boys were the rule of the day.

"Why, a number have risen to very important positions in B.C. and at least one became an MLA," he added.

Page boys, explained Mr. Irwin, are much more active than the elderly messengers who have to be employed in their place for the delivery of messages in the legislature and the running of errands for members.

"Obviously boys are better suited," he said. "When I first came here I had a whole bunch of applications from parents who wanted their boys to become pages."

Mr. Irwin said "our educational system is missing something" if youths are prevented from seeing something other people think would be bad for them.

"The boys' parents are the people who send MLAs here, and if they don't think the children should be subjected to the environment in the legislature they should never have sent the members here," he said.

According to the speaker-designate the boys would gain a thorough working knowledge of government and its operation.

The boys would work, and be paid, between 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. every second day. The last year page boys were used was in 1953, but since then the school board has clamped down.

"I'm still hopeful we'll have the page boys this session," said Mr. Irwin, a tinge of sadness in his voice.

But unless the school board has a sudden change of heart the neat blue uniforms with their red trim are destined to gather dust for a further year, in a cupboard in Mr. Irwin's office.

A LOVELIER YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

BUTTON, BUTTON, WHO'S GOT A BUTTON? Cosmetics can create an illusion of perfection for irregular features. After a skillful application, even an outrageously stubby button-nose looks longer and slimmer.

To obtain effects, use two shades of powder base: (1) a basic shade that matches the skin; (2) an auxiliary in a lighter tone—several degrees lighter than the basic.

Film entire face with basic foundation. Then, using the auxiliary, swathe nose from bridge to beneath tip, and blend edges with light taps of fingertips. Finish by fluffing powder on entire face and removing excess with downward whisks.

MAKE-UP MAKE-BELIEVE

Facial flaws both large and small can be repaired by make-up. How to give the illusion of perfection to imperfect features is detailed in my leaflet, "Make-Up Make-Believe." To obtain a copy, write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and five cents in coin.

WORMS

MAY BE

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of these ugly pests they must be killed in the intestines where they live and multiply. And that's exactly what JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE does . . . kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily. Then they are expelled from the system in a normal manner, and you are free of them.

For your own sake and the health of your children and loved ones, don't put off treatment. Get started with JAYNE'S at the very first sign of Pin-Worms. For once established these parasites are highly contagious and often spread through entire families.

So be sure to ask your druggist for JAYNE'S, famous for worm remedies for over one hundred years.

Newest Silhouette Is 'Bloused Look'

By MARIAN BAHL

NEW YORK—In the second day of spring showings by couture designers in New York City, fashion emerges as lovely and prophetic as the season itself. The promise of change is more than answered in such stimulating innovations as Pauline Trigere's "tutu," actually one of the first breaks in the sheath silhouette. This is the flared tunic, a sort of ballerina-like skirt subtly rippling about the hipline. It is a most important change, posing flared lines to break the sheath as we have come to know it.

PAULINE TRIGERE

For spring, 1957, Pauline Trigere breaks the long slim sheath line by superimposing flared peplums and using side skirt and bodice treatments as well. The flared little overskirt is her "tutu" and suggests the graceful line of a ballerina's costume. Miss Trigere uses it successfully for both dresses and suits, the latter taking on a longer jacket look as a result.

Soft side handling is found in sheath dresses with flared panels at the sides, sometimes pleated. Another innovation is the unusual bloused panel set under the arms and ending at the waistline. These are in soft fabrics and the overall effect is very feminine. Also new in feeling is the flared pinafore tunic.

Costumes include slim and flared coats of redingote type over matching slim woollen skirts with handsome leather belts and printed silk blouses.

OLEG CASSINI

Bolero effects that blouse the top of the sheath silhouette mark some of the prettiest clothes that Oleg Cassini has done to date. In his spring collection, short bloused bodices are underscored by arched bandings or cummerbunds which suggest a high waist effect. Skirts are slender and pegged at the front hipline, then narrowing to the hem.

In addition to thin woollens for daytime—wool jersey and novelty knits are shown also—there are soft crepe dresses draped and bloused at the top with slim skirts narrowing at the hemline.

For after-five there are printed silks, striped taffetas and silk marquisette. A black silk surah sheath has straps crossing at bare shoulders and reaching to the ankles. Chiffon is draped in slender columns and gathered into wide floating skirts also. Black over lilac chiffon is one of the loveliest.

HERBERT SONDHEIM

Lightweight woollen dresses have soft flattering treatment by Herbert Sondheim. Shoulders are natural and bodices have few gathers as they rely on careful cut for good fit. The bloused look was never more flattering than in the dress fitted through the middle of the figure but with released fullness for a bloused look above the midriff.

Typical of the new showings is the dress pictured above depicting the "bloused look." It was never more flattering than in the dress fitted through the middle of the figure but with released fullness for a bloused look above the midriff. Many short bloused bodices are underscored by arched bandings or cummerbunds suggesting a high waist effect.

Spouses Combine Talents To Paint Single Canvas

PARIS (WNS) — Looking for a new hobby that you and your husband can carry on together? How about painting "joint" pictures on the same canvas?

It's the latest novelty to hit the art capital of the world. At least one art teacher, Louis Lemaitre, has even formed a class to which he only admits married couples.

"I tell the husband to start painting from one side of the canvas and his wife from the other," Lemaitre explained. "When they meet in the centre, they have a complete painting. Speaking as a professional, all sorts of interesting artistic combinations can arise from working this way. Speaking as an amateur, it's also very good [illegible]

He added that several couples who have joined his class have told him their home life had become much more tranquil since they started painting together.

The couple do not have to possess similar artistic styles. However, according to Lemaitre, it is usually wisest if they agree beforehand on which colors each will use.

They also must abide by certain rules of fair play.

"When we started," Lemaitre [illegible] would try to paint the fastest in order to cover more of the canvas than the other. Now we advise drawing a line down the center. Neither partner is allowed to cross it."

Flowering Plants Need Special Care

A plant expert advises putting your green thumb to work now to be sure flowering plants you got for Christmas stay healthy.

Floriculture specialist, G. M. Fosler, of the University of Illinois, says flowers in full bloom need prompt watering. And the plants should be kept near a window—but away from drafts and radiators.

Daytime temperatures should not be above 75 degrees. At night, temperatures may be about 15 to 20 degrees lower.

Couple Wed in U.S. Spend Honeymoon Here

Of interest in Victoria is the wedding of Madalyn Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Broadfoot and Lieut. Louis B. Hafer, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hafer of Brownwood, which took place in First Christian Church, Sedalia, Missouri.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her brother, Mr. Allen G. Nichols, was groomsman. She wore a frost white gown of Chantilly lace and net over white over bridal satin. Her smooth fitting bodice had an elongated waistline and the very full floor-length skirt of net gave her a regal air.

A lace edged half veil of net and lace with orange blossoms and her mother's bridal veil completed her attire. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis on a white Bible.

Her attendants were Miss Beth Jones and Miss Martha New, who wore white short dresses of lace over taffeta. The lace scarfs of cerise were complemented by a salmon pink lace and taffeta cummerbund and overskirts of taffeta were gathered in panier effect at sides and back. Both attendants carried baskets of white carnations.

LIEUT. AND MRS. LOUIS B. HAFER

Lieut. A. Earl Vancil of Dallas, was best man. Lieut. Richard Armstrong of Oakland, Calif., and Lieut. James McGuire, usher.

For her wedding the bride wore a white ballerina gown, fashioned with fitted lace bodice, a deep scoop neck and short sleeves and a matching lace jacket. Her veil was attached from a lace crown and she carried a white prayer book with red roses and white stephanotis.

As matron of honor Mrs. Richard Armstrong wore pale green lace with a pink net skirt and a matching lace jacket. Her flowers were pink roses.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Bob Jones, Mrs. Jack Hale, Mrs. Bob Hale, and Mrs. Jack Hale, in pastel shades of taffeta and lace. They carried bouquets of pink roses.

Best man was Lieut. Bob Jones, Hale, and usher Lieut. Jack Hale, Lieut. Jack Hale, Lieut. Bob Jones, Hale, and usher

TV TALK

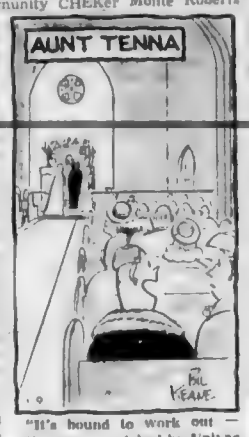
By Bruce Lowther

It requires a staff of 39 people to operate CHEK-TV. This column has named 25 of them in past weeks! now it's time to bring the staff list up to date

Missed in the earlier confusion were schedule expert Joan Armstrong, Community CHEKer Monte Roberts salesman John Dunbar better known for his baritone, and free-lance photographer Basil Fox

Writing staff also [illegible] from Sudbury, at present off with a broken ankle and Bill Dowson from Lethbridge. Another ex-Lethbridgean is salesman Jim Ross

Borge Haagensen has joined the engineering staff and the remainder of the additions are Victorians George Wright and Bob Gillespie in the control room, Marjorie Gibson in the film room stenographer Margaret Pickup, switchboard operator Pat Harris and staff carpenter Bob Brewis who builds the sets



"It's bound to work out — they were matched by Univac for 'People Are Funny'."

* * *

Not much to recommend tonight

Disney and (channel 5) [illegible] begins "Alice in Wonderland" but TViewers can pick up on channel 6 next week. Channel 5's late movie is "Conquest" with Greta Garbo and Charles Boyer

* * *

A record of $80,000,000 will be spent in Hollywood this year on production of TV series shows up $10,000,000 from 1956

The number of series 115 is also a record as is the total of 68 shows sold to sponsors before production begins

In addition to this huge production is another 400 test films of possible new shows which indicates a major revamping of schedules when the 1957-58 season begins in September

It would be impossible to give all of the titles here but some of the more interesting and glaring new ones are Casey Jones "Here Comes the Showboat" "I Love a Mystery" "How to Marry a Millionaire" "Cheaper By the Dozen," "Prince Valiant" "Mother Was a Freshman" "New Adventures of Charlie Chan" "Tugboat Annie" "New York Confidential," "Tarzan," "Winning of the West" and "Exclusive!"

* * *

MONDAY REVIEW: Gisele MacKenzie's dramatic debut on Studio One, was a smash. The girl can do anything . . . Nat Cole's new show on channel 4 was bright and breezy, and best when the talented singer played the piano as he did in the old days

Rita Del Mar's Daily Astrology

WEDNESDAY JAN. 9

Today's quotation: "If there be any truer measure of a man than by what he does, it must be by what he gives." South.

Wednesday for everyone: A reasonable logical approach to people and situations will gain the best results. Be guarded against a tendency to haste, friction upsets.

Look for Your Birthdate and Birthsign Below.

March 21 to April 19 (Aries)—Exert your personal talents, educational opportunities; use tact with higher ups.

April 20 to May 20 (Taurus) Complete odds and ends of tasks, make headway. Use care in travel.

May 21 to May 20 (Gemini) Deal with friends, associates, kin, neighbors, protect assets, conserve vitality.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer) Forward ambitious plans, battle practical, complicated things, make important changes.

July 23 to Aug. 22 (Leo) Protect ideas, gain advice, plan or travel, avoid hastiness, protect health.

Aug. 23 to Sep. 22 (Virgo) Benefit through the ideas, contacts, assets of others, complete things, shun risks.

Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 (Libra) Other people can be helpful, look to them for support, keep calm, cool.

Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 (Scorpio) You should be able to get a lot of work done. Polish off details; shun upsets.

Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius) Your considered judgment is good. Plan, analyze, protect belongings, avoid haste.

Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 (Capricorn) Finish things, utilize present assets instead of buying, remain poised.

Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 (Aquarius) Organize details, see a lot accomplished, gain information, maintain harmony.

Feb. 19 to March 20 (Pisces) The day is a good one for moving, giving service. Be tactful with friends and co-workers.

Planting period. Good for entertaining, sociability etc. Jan. 9-11, daytime of 12, 14, 17, 18, 20, 23.

Federal Candidates Face Odd Conflicts

By JAMES R. NELSON

OTTAWA (BUP) — If 1956 was a prelude to a national general election in 1957, federal candidates next June will encounter strange conflicts as they travel across the country looking for votes.

The past year was marked by six provincial elections, and although all but one resulted in the government in power being returned to office, they emphasized the orthodoxy of Eastern Canada and the unorthodoxy of the West.

The federal government of Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent was working towards an early June, 1957, election, generally confident of being returned to power. There will be close to 9,000,000 Canadians entitled to vote, half a million more than were on voters lists in 1953, 67 percent of whom cast their ballots.

Political interest stirred up during 1956 in the provincial contests may result in a higher percentage turning out on election day next year. The percentage has been falling in recent general elections.

NEW OPPOSITION

The results of this year's provincial contests showed that in all but one case—Nova Scotia—the electors were well satisfied with the government they had. But when the year ended, seven of the ten provinces had governments politically opposed to the federal Liberals. Political scientists saw this development as a new kind of government - opposition balance, with the main opposition to the federal administration finding itself in the provincial governments, rather than in the House of Commons.

From East to West, the record of 1956 provincial elections was this:

Newfoundland, on Oct. 2, returned Liberal Premier Joe Smallwood in a landslide, increasing his support in the legislature to 32 members, with four Conservatives in opposition.

Nova Scotia, on Oct. 30, turned out the Liberal government headed by Henry Hicks and elected a Conservative administration under Premier Robert L. Stanfield.

It was the only upset of the year, and regarded as a major political event since the Hicks government was not regarded as unpopular.

CONSERVATIVES IN

New Brunswick, on June 18, re-elected the Conservative government of Premier Hugh John Flemming which had ended 17 years of Liberal rule in 1952. The Conservatives won one additional seat in the legislature for a 37-15 split with the Liberals.

Quebec, two days later, put Union Nationale Premier Maurice Duplessis back in office for a fifth term with 72 members in a legislature of 93 seats. The 23 Liberals elected in 1952 were cut to 20.

All four eastern provincial elections represented the successes of political orthodoxy. Newfoundland stood by the only government it has known since coming into Confederation. Nova Scotia threw out a 23-year-old government its voters had grown tired of, and swung to the right.

UNORTHODOX WEST

In Western Canada, it was the unorthodox parties which were the victors. Social Credit in British Columbia, and Socialist again in Saskatchewan.

British Columbia, on Sept. 19, returned Social Credit Premier W. A. C. Bennett with an increased majority, and Social Crediters in both British Columbia and Alberta said victory meant that the party would move "on to Ottawa."

In Saskatcheewan, on June 20, the same day as the Quebec election, Premier T. C. Douglas was returned to office for the CCF's fourth straight term, the only Socialist government in the country.

Older than It Looks

Dr. Matthew W. Stirling, leader of the National Geographic-Smithsonian Institution expedition, crouches beside a mammoth carving unearthed in La Venta, Mexico. Recent tests proved the head dates from between 800 and 400 BC—making it about 1,000 years older than had been believed. A cast of a similar head is displayed in Explorers' Hall in the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Dr. Stirling declared the new dating the most important Mexican archeological discovery in recent history.—(CPC.)

Inaugural Address

Mayor Again Urges 'Scramble Corners'

Installation of "scramble corners" to speed traffic on some of the main streets was recommended again Monday night by Mayor Percy Scurrah in his inaugural address to city council.

"In my opinion (it) could be put into operation without waiting for other traffic changes," he said.

The "scramble corners" alternate use of intersections between cars and pedestrians.

* * *

The city's gross debenture debt has been reduced in the past year from $11,926,697 to $11,400,000, the mayor reported.

Of the net debt of $8,051,328, he said, it was interesting to note that there was $813,214 "which is of a distinctly metropolitan character, and had we had amalgamation it would have been borne by all the municipalities. I refer to the Jubilee Hospital on which we still owe $182,214, the arena, $389,000, and the Public Library, $242,000."

* * *

Many of the city engineer's proposed projects for 1957 will have to be delayed for lack of funds, the mayor said. But these things, he indicated, appeared necessary:

Bowker Creek from North Dairy Road to Burton should be enclosed and the winding section of the wooden culvert from Hillside to Myrtle should be enclosed in concrete. The second phase of main enlargement of storm drains serving Fairfield should be undertaken and a pumping system for low-lying parts should be investigated.

Cleaning and rehabilitation of all storm drains should be continued and a drain should be built to eliminate flooding in the Francis area. Fifty additional catch basins should be installed and the Cecelia Street pumping station should be rebuilt.

Paving should be carried out on Pandora from Stanley to Fernwood, Douglas from Fisgard to Pembroke, Yates from Government to Wharf, Douglas from the Fountain to Tolmie and Chatham from Government to Store.

* * *

The mayor apparently took the view that council's approval in principle of disposing of garbage by a landfill system at Thetis Lake Park did not fin[illegible]

He said he thought dumping at sea could be made satisfactory if the garbage was efficiently crushed and dumped far enough out at sea, and that the Thetis Lake suggestion was probably the most feasible found yet, although it was essential that space be found for disposing of garbage for 10 years. Building an incinerator, he said, would cost too much.

* * *

Leaks in the arena floor, the mayor said, are causing the arena commission some concern and "it may well be that it will be necessary to replace the floor at a date earlier than was anticipated."

However, he said, "in case this happens the engineer recommends that instead of laying a complete new floor, we lay plastic pipes on top of the present floor. This could be done at a very much less cost than replacing the entire floor. His estimate is $15,000 for a complete job."

Comparative Religions

Popular Course Repeated

Persons turned away from evening classes on Comparative Religions at Victoria College last year will have a chance to attend the 16-week series this year.

Lectures last year were attended by 80 persons and many were turned away when the class was filled. Because of its popularity, the course is being repeated.

First in the series will be held Thursday at 8 p.m., when Dr. Wayne Suttles will speak on "An Anthropologist Looks at Religion."

Comparative Religions is a complete course and attendance at individual lectures will not be permitted.

Those wishing to attend should call Victoria College and register by mail or in person before Thursday.

Other lecturers will be K. D. Naegele, Sociology of Religion; Dr. D. P. Pandia, Hinduism; Dr. Frank Hoffman, Islam; Rabbi B. Goldenberg, Judaism; Rev. Father T. J. Hanrahan, Catholicism; Rev. H. F. Woodhouse, Protestantism, and Mr. H. Mumoto, Buddhism.

Each will give two lectures on their topics.

Sidney Precedent

Custom Ignored By Commission

SIDNEY—Custom was ignored at Monday night's meeting of Sidney village commission when three newly-elected members brought Magistrate F. J. Baker to the meeting to swear them in.

Normally the ceremony is performed by the commission's clerk, A. W. Sharp.

The three new members were Dr. C. H. Hemmings, T. A. Alerx and A. A. Cormack, all representatives of Sidney Ratepayers' Association. They defeated the three retiring members of the five-man commission in December elections.

No explanation was given for the departure from practice, which is quite legal.

Dr. Hemmings was unanimously elected chairman of the commission following the swearing-in ceremony.

Optimists' District Split Down Centre

District 13 of the Optimists' Club will be split down the centre July 1 to form a new district, district governor Fred Tanner said last night.

At present, district 13 includes the three western provinces of Canada and the four northwestern states of the U.S. A 32nd district will be formed July 1 with the division line along the Rocky Mountains.

Mr. Tanner denied rumors that he would become the first governor of an all-Canadian district of the Optimists' Club. He pointed out that the division would be roughly north-south, which meant that both U.S. and Canadian clubs would be in each district.

Vancouver Island will be part of the new district.

A quarterly meeting of the district board will be held in Victoria Feb. 8 and 9. Plans for the formation of the new district and plans for the district convention to be held in Saskatoon in May will be completed.

Lampson Mix-Up Continues

Lampson Street and Lampson Place, two roads in Esquimalt, will continue to confuse mail sorters.

Esquimalt council Monday night decided to advise the post office that the name of Lampson Place is not to be changed. The postmaster asked for the change when it was found that mail was being mixed up.

Coun. James Bryant said that residents of Lampson Place wanted the name of their street—place, that is—retained.

Council also requested the postmaster to provide mail delivery to the homes on Lampson Place, instead of leaving mail at the entrance to the road.

Reeve Names Committees At Oak Bay

Reeve Fred Norris, at Monday's inaugural Oak Bay council meeting, named Coun. C. H. G. Mann chairman of the finance committee; Coun. Fred Hawes, public works; Coun. George Murdoch, parks; Coun. W. G. Ellis, fire; Coun. J. V. Johnson, streets and traffic, and Coun. F. A. Robinson, lands and buildings.

Named acting reeve was Coun. Johnson.

Representatives on other boards or intermunicipal committees are Coun. Robinson, juvenile detention home; Reeve Norris, water board; Couns. Johnson and Hawes, civil defence; Coun. Ellis, library board; Couns. Mann and Hawes, UBCM; Coun. Hawes, town planning; Coun. Ellis, Greater Victoria Celebrations, and Coun. Mann, centenary.

Committees Named By Esquimalt Reeve

Reeve A. C. Wurtele appointed the following standing committees at the first meeting of the year of Esquimalt council Monday night (first named is chairman):

Finance: Councillors J. E. Carey, W. E. A. Barclay and Walter Holder.

Public works: Councillors G. F. Argyle, Holder and C. A. Fields.

Fire and lights: Councillors Holder, Carey and Barclay.

Reverted property: Councillors Fields, Barclay and James Bryant.

Parks and playgrounds: Councillors Bryant, Argyle and Fields.

Council made the following appointments to various boards and committees for 1957:

Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health, ex-councillor G. K. Sammon. Greater Victoria Celebrations Association, Coun. Barclay; Juvenile Detention Home Administration Board, Coun. Carey.

Inter-municipal committee, Coun. Holder. Greater Victoria Water Board, Reeve Wurtele. Royal Jubilee Hospital Board, Reeve Wurtele.

Greater Victoria library board, Coun. Barclay. Greater Victoria civil defence control board, Reeve Wurtele and Coun. Holder.

Cash Saves Money, Cheques Expensive

MONTREAL (CP)—A bank official says Canadians could save at least $5,000,000 of the $55,000,000 they pay annually for the privilege of issuing bank cheques.

The official said the saving could be made if people would pay some bills with cash instead of issuing a cheque.

There are two kinds of accounts offered by Canadian banks—current and savings. Banks charge 15 cents for processing savings account cheques and 10 cents for current accounts.

NOT PRACTICAL

F. D. Cleland, assistant manager of the Bank of Montreal's branch in the financial district here, said, "our savings account holders could save themselves a great deal of expense each year if they would only be a bit more practical about the manner in which they use their accounts.

"For example, many housewives are in the habit of issuing savings account cheques in payment of weekly milk, bread and cleaning bills and other small obligations. Let's say Mrs. Smith writes five cheques a week for a total of $11.50. Its going to cost her 75 cents in bank charges for processing those cheques, so she's paying nearly seven per cent extra.

"Wouldn't it be much better if she arranged to have enough cash in the house to take care of such incidental expenses?"

BRITISH OPERA

The fishing village of Aldeburgh in Suffolk is the setting for Benjamin Britten's opera "Peter Grimes."

City to Ask Maintenance Road Grant

Victoria city will ask the provincial government for a special grant toward the cost of keeping up its roads.

Council has authorized its finance committee to approach the government in this respect because, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said Monday night, 50,000 Victorians have to maintain roads for use by 125,000 persons in the whole metropolitan area.

Ald. Edgelow suggested that asking the Union of B.C. Municipalities to consider the problem would be of no use because only Victoria and Vancouver were affected.

He said many Victorians had no cars but were obliged to help pay for excessive road upkeep, the situation was getting worse, and that some of the taxes collected by the provincial government from motorists should be used for this purpose.
